SAT 12:15 Music Matters (b03vzzhs)

John McCabe, Mariusz Kwiecien, Venezuela, Christoph von Dohnanyi

Tom Service interviews composer John McCabe as he approaches his 75th birthday and meets the Polish baritone Mariusz Kwiecien who is currently starring as Don Giovanni at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. Tom talks to the BBC News reporter Irene Caselli about how classical musicians are being drawn into the political unrest in Venezuela and discusses the music of Richard Strauss with conductor Christoph von Dohnányi ahead of a performance with the Philharmonia at London's Royal Festival Hall.

SAT 13:00 Radio 3 Lunchtime Concert (b03vd5mn)

Wigmore Hall: Angela Hewitt

Live from Wigmore Hall, London.

Angela Hewitt (piano)

Haydn: Andante with Variations in F minor, HXVII:6

Beethoven: Piano Sonata in A major, Op 2 No 2

Bach: Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue in D minor, BWV903

In his set of variations, written at the very end of the 18th century, Joseph Haydn plumbed emotional depths that may have surprised its first listeners. His pupil Beethoven goes even further in what was only his second sonata for the instrument that meant so much to him. Angela Hewitt closes her programme with Bach, without whose influence it's impossible to imagine Haydn or Beethoven writing for the keyboard, in a piece that tests both instrument and performer to the limit.

SAT 14:00 Saturday Classics (b03vzzhv)

Roxanna Panufnik

Composer Roxanna Panufnik introduces a selection of music inspired by her roots in Poland and by her father Andrzej, born a hundred years ago this year.

Her idea is to place her father's music in the context of the music of his native Poland so she offers a selection of Polish works from across a thousand years of history - both familiar and unfamiliar: from Poland's oldest hymn - the "Bogurodzica" - through works by Pekieli, Chopin, Moniuszko, Szymanowski, Bacewicz, Lutoslawski and Panufnik.

SAT 16:00 Sound of Cinema (b03vzzhx)

Books

Matthew Sweet introduces a selection of film music inspired by books in the light of this week's featured new release - "The Book Thief", featuring a new score by John Williams. The classic score of the week is Bernard Herrmann's "Fahrenheit 451" and the programme also features music by Nico Muhly, James Horner, Thomas Newman and Joseph LoDuca.

Terrace

By Dafydd James.

A darkly comic story of love, loss and prejudice.

When Stevie's boyfriend Matthew becomes seriously ill, the couple move into a new house, complete with wheelchair access and a downstairs toilet. However, Cardiff's multicultural Grangetown is far from the peaceful idyll they were hoping for. The walls are thin and you can hear everything, even whispered conversations if you put your ear to the wall. As Matthew's condition worsens, Stevie is drawn into a sinister story happening next door.

A BBC Cymru Wales Production

The Writer

Dafydd is an award-winning writer, composer and performer, working in theatre, radio and television in both English and Welsh. Dafydd's play Llwyth was a huge success in Wales with a sell-out tour and wonderful reviews. It appeared at the Edinburgh festival before touring Wales and appearing at the Taipei Arts Festival. My Name is Sue, co-created with Ben Lewis, premiered at the Edinburgh Festival before transferring to Soho Theatre and was awarded the Total Theatre Award for Music and Theatre. The sequel - Sue: The Second Coming provided an unorthodox Christmas celebration for Soho Theatre in December 2013. Dafydd is currently working on Connections with the Royal National Theatre.

Praise for Dafydd James

'A bizarre and beguiling must-see show.' (My Name is Sue, The Stage)

'Brilliant...hysterically funny and beautifully played.' (My Name is Sue, Time Out)

'Utterly unlike anything else I saw at this year's festival: a play that took on far-reaching questions of language and sexuality without a hint of preachiness' (Llwyth, The Guardian)

'A piece of theatre...that changes the landscape of the country that produced it.' (Llwyth, Buzz Magazine).

SAT 22:30 Hear and Now (b03w06bd)

James MacMillan

Sara Mohr-Pietsch introduces a recent concert of works by James MacMillan, in conversation with the composer at his home in Glasgow. MacMillan himself conducts the BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra in a programme which includes world premieres of two recently rediscovered early orchestral works, Symphonic Study and The Keening, and the concert's centrepiece is his violin concerto, A Deep but Dazzling Darkness, featuring the BBC SSO's leader Laura Samuel.

James Jolly's Sunday selection of music includes Poulenc's Double Piano Concerto, and the programme's survey of Mozart symphonies reaches No.39.

SUN 12:00 Private Passions (b03w0b38)

Kwasi Kwarteng

If you should happen to be walking through the House of Commons, and hear loud Wagner blasting out along those corridors of power ? you know you're heading for the office of Kwasi Kwarteng. He's been there since 2010, when he was elected MP for Spelthorne in Surrey. Before going into Parliament, he'd already established a reputation as a historian; his new book 'War and Gold' comes out later this spring, following 'Ghosts of Empire', a fascinating study of the legacy of the British Empire around the world. All this and he's not yet 40.

In Private Passions, he talks to Michael Berkeley about his own background: his parents came here from Ghana as students in the 1960s, and he says that thanks to them, 'the British Empire has always been with me'. His music choices include Wagner (naturally), Gilbert and Sullivan, Chopin, Schubert, Haydn, and Smokey Robinson ? he discovered Motown on an unforgettable American jukebox. He also includes a vintage recording of John Gielgud reading Shelley's 'Ozymandias', a poem which is a salutary warning for a politician about the transience of power. And he reveals that his ambition is to own a piano; he even chooses the ragtime piece he wants to play ? Scott Joplin's Elite Syncopations.

SUN 17:30 Words and Music (b03w0dzk)

Ruins

The actors Kenneth Cranham and Joanna David contemplate ruins in texts from anonymous Anglo-Saxon verse, telling of the ruined city of Aquae Sulis, which is most probably Bath, to the ruins of Empire, as vividly portrayed by Derek Walcott. They also reflect on the ruins of ancient lands like Egypt, romantic sham ruins, human ruins and ruined minds. This edition of Words and Music includes texts by Walter de la Mare to Philip Roth and Wordsworth to Rilke, and music reconstructed from ancient Rome, Rachmaninov and Kurtag.

SUN 18:45 Sunday Feature (b03w0dzm)

Eileen Gray: The Missing Heart of Design

In anticipation of Eileen Gray's newly restored E1027 house opening to the public, Fiona Shaw explores the life and work of the Irish-born designer and architect.

Following a major exhibition at the Pompidou in Paris, which brought Gray new attention, she remains mysterious. She was born into a wealthy, aristocratic family in County Wexford in Ireland in 1878. Stifled by her mother's ostentation, she fled to live in Paris where she dared to enter the male-dominated professions of architecture and design as a self-taught woman.

In the first decades of the 20th Century, she created some of her iconic chairs and tables - the Bibendum and Dragon chairs among them. The Dragon Chair would sell for a record £19 million in 2009. Her clients famously included the fashion designers Jacques Doucet and Elsa Schiaparelli.

Although she's better known for her furniture, she devoted most of her working life to architectural projects. The pale, coloured concrete E-1027 house, near Monaco, is a true prototype for many architects today.

It was her close friend, the architect and writer, Jean Badovici who really encouraged her to focus on architecture, writing that, "She knows that our time, with its new possibilities of living, necessitates new ways of feeling."

She earned the respect of the De Stijl movement and Le Corbusier yet she openly contested the hard edged "machine" maxim. Her instinctive anti-heroicism is partly why her work is less known, but Le Corbusier also claimed E1027 as his own when, uninvited he painted "gregarious" murals on the interior walls, which Gray later commented "felt like rape".

As Fiona reveals, Gray's modernity was in her rethinking of the interior space; in how this could transform and become used, rather than imposing its functionality on us.

Contributors include Colm Toibin, Deborah Saunt, Beatriz Colomina, Peter Adam, Joseph Rykwert, Pierre-Antoine Gatier, Alice Rawsthorn and Elisabeth Lebovici.

First broadcast in February 2014.

Takacs Quartet - Dvorak, Janacek

Dvorak's 'American' Quartet and Janacek's 'Kreutzer Sonata' performed by the Takacs Quartet live at London's Wigmore Hall

Presented by Louise Fryer

Part One

Dvorak: Quartet in F, Op 96 ('American')

Janacek: Quartet no 1 ('Kreutzer Sonata')

8.25 Interval

Grainger: Ramble on Love from Strauss's 'Der Rosenkavalier' Piers Lane (piano)

8.45 Part Two

Dvorak: Quintet in G, Op 77

Takacs Quartet

Graham Mitchell (double-bass)

Wigmore Hall Associate Artists, the renowned Takacs Quartet, in a programme of fervently passionate, deeply personal works by Czech masters Antonin Dvorak and Leos Janacek.

While Dvorak's 'American' Quartet was written on retreat in Iowa, it is infused with the music of his homeland and speaks of a profound homesickness. Janacek's marital circumstances were mirrored in Tolstoy's novella 'The Kreutzer Sonata', and his quartet of 1923 is a vivid portrayal of the deep feelings the work stirred in him.

In the interval, we look forward to tomorrow evening's Live From The Met. As a taste of Richard Strauss's 'Der Rosenkavalier', Piers Lane plays, amongst other things, Percy Grainger's affectionate and dazzling paraphrase on themes from the opera.

SUN 22:00 Drama on 3 (b01ppwn6)

Copenhagen

Benedict Cumberbatch, Greta Scacchi and Simon Russell Beale

star in Michael Frayn's award-winning play about the controversial 1941 meeting between physicists Bohr and Heisenberg, part of a joint Radio 3 and Radio 4 series of three Michael Frayn dramas for radio - including new adaptations of his novels, 'Skios' and 'Headlong'.

Copenhagen, Autumn 1941. The two presiding geniuses of quantum physics, Niels Bohr and Werner Heisenberg meet for the first time since the breakout of war.

Danish physicist Bohr and his wife, Margrethe, live in Nazi-occupied Denmark; their visitor, Heisenberg, is German. Two old friends, now on opposing sides, who between them have the ability to change the course of history.

But why has Heisenberg - Bohr's former protégé - come to Copenhagen?

Michael Frayn's Tony award-winning play imagines the three characters re-drafting the events of 1941 in an attempt to make sense of them. A powerful exploration of the uncertainties of human memory and motivation.

This new version of Copenhagen is adapted for radio and directed by Emma Harding

Cesar Franck (1822-1890)

Birth and Breakaway

According to popular wisdom (and pub quizzes), famous Belgians may be a bit thin on the ground, but as Donald Macleod makes clear in this week's Composer of the Week, César Franck (1822-1890) surely deserves to be in that number. Born in Liège the son of a domineering father, he showed great musical promise at an early age. A pianist of prodigious gifts, and very large hands, he was soon being displayed to the world by his proud father. But when the family moved to Paris, his first attempt to enrol at the city's Conservatoire was a failure - he was deemed too young, and too Belgian! He was driven to compose at a very young age and, although his juvenilia has not stood the test of time, he made a good impression with his Opus 1, a piano trio, impressing such luminaries as Franz Liszt. Forced by his father into a punishing regime of touring, teaching and performance, by his mid-twenties César longed to break away from the paternal grasp. When it came, the rupture was occasioned by the small matter of a song - 'L'Ange et l'Enfant' - and the woman to whom it was dedicated.

From the Met

Strauss 150: Der Rosenkavalier

Presented by Margaret Juntwait.

Recorded last autumn at New York's Metropolitan Opera House, Der Rosenkavalier as part of our Strauss 150 celebrations. Based on Hofmannstahl's libretto, this bittersweet comic opera, Strauss's homage to Mozart and the Viennese waltz, poses deeper questions about how love is affected by the passing of time and by men's fickleness. Edward Gardner conducts the Met's orchestra and chorus, with a superb cast led by Martina Serafin as the Marschallin, Alice Coote as Octavian, Erin Morley as Sophie, and Peter Rose as Baron Ochs

MON 23:00 Jazz on 3 (b03w0fz6)

Nick Malcolm Quartet

Trumpeter Nick Malcolm has emerged in the last couple of years as one to watch on the British scene. Here leading his quartet in concert at the Vortex Jazz Club in Dalston, East London, his ambitious compositional and playing style comes to the fore in music that merges short, cell-like themes with loose improvisational structures. The quartet's soundworld incorporates echoes of Miles Davis hardbop and 20th-century chamber music, as well as more avant-garde leanings. Experienced free improvisers, pianist Alexander Hawkins and bassist Ollie Brice take the music in unexpected directions, while drummer Mark Whitlam offers traces of the groove-music scene of Malcolm's native Bristol.

Also on the programme, journalist Stephen Graham explores a growing trend of bands that are stripping away harmonic complexity and putting melody and groove at the heart of their music.

Presenter: Kevin Le Gendre

Producer: Chris Elcombe.

TUE 12:00 Composer of the Week (b03w0hrx)

Cesar Franck (1822-1890)

Marriage and Musicianship

Donald Macleod continues his look at the life and career of Belgian composer, César Franck. After years under the heel of his domineering father, by his mid-twenties Franck is prompted to stand up to the bullying Nicholas-Joseph, all in the name of love. He was determined to marry one of his pupils, to whom he dedicated a song. Franck even moved out of his family home to join his future in-laws. When finally, in 1848, he was able to marry the woman of his dreams, he was faced with a riot - not between his parents and in-laws, but between pro and anti-government forces! Marriage broadened his outlook and introduced him to the pleasures of literature, which in turn would inspire some of his composition, such as the orchestral meditation, Ce qu'on Entend sur la Montagne. Meanwhile, we find Franck eking out a living by teaching, and by playing the organ. The revival of French organ making by Aristide Cavaillé-Coll would transform Franck's view of the instrument, and inspire him to compose some of his finest music for the instrument.

TUE 13:00 Radio 3 Lunchtime Concert (b03w0hvc)

Barry Douglas and Friends at LSO St Luke's

Episode 1

In the first of four concerts he has personally curated at LSO St

Lukes in London, pianist Barry Douglas performs Brahms's introspective Seven Fantasies, Op 116, and Schubert's final great Piano Sonata in B flat, D960.

Brahms: Seven Fantasies, Op 116

Schubert: Piano Sonata in B flat, D960

Barry Douglas has established a major international career since winning the Gold Medal at the 1986 Tchaikovsky International Piano Competition in Moscow. As Artistic Director of Camerata Ireland and the Clondeboy Festival, he continues to celebrate his Irish heritage whilst also maintaining a busy international touring schedule.

Barry has recently embarked on a monumental recording project to record the complete works for solo piano of Brahms and Schubert within five years, and it is Brahms's chamber music which is at the core of this four-concert residency, the latest in the LSO St Lukes/BBC Radio 3 Lunchtime Concert sequence of 'And Friends' residencies.

The friends he has invited to join him reflect his wide-ranging contacts within the musical world, and include violinist Chloë Hanslip and horn-player Richard Watkins from the UK, French clarinettist Michel Lethiec and Finnish cellist Arto Noras.

WED 12:00 Composer of the Week (b03w0hrz)
Cesar Franck (1822-1890)

War and the Franckistes

What did you do in the war, Papa? In today's programme Donald Macleod finds César Franck and his sons caught up in the Franco-Prussian War of 1870. The composer is now at the head of an adoring band of young composers - Franckistes - eager to learn from the master, even when the public at large was indifferent. In the midst of a siege, Franck volunteers to help keep Paris alive through deliveries of fuel and portions of chocolate. He is also inspired to start work on his epic choral work, Les Beatitudes which, like most of his works, would endure a disastrous premiere! After the war, Franck's followers would establish the Société Nationale de Musique. As we'll discover, this was generally good news for the promotion of instrumental music. But as Franck's circle of young composers grew ever wider, a rift would start to appear between César and his wife Felicité, who grew increasingly resentful of their presence. Nevertheless, Franck managed to pen the one song by which he is best known to the world: Panis Angelicus. With his Trois Pièces written for organ, he would also impress audiences in the vast hall of the Trocadero Palace!

London Philharmonic Orchestra - Bruckner, Brahms

Vladimir Jurowski conducts the LPO in Bruckner's Symphony No 2 and Brahms's Double Concerto, with Julia Fischer and Daniel Müller-Schott

Live from the Royal Festival Hall
Presented by Andrew McGregor

Brahms: Double Concerto

8.20: Interval - piano music by Brahms

8.40
Bruckner: Symphony No.2

Julia Fischer violin
Daniel Müller-Schott cello
London Philharmonic Orchestra
Vladimir Jurowski conductor

Bruckner's Second Symphony is where his epic symphonic journey really begins - where we encounter for the first time that rhythmic power, rolling inevitability and humble tunefulness that make his huge orchestral canvases so irresistible. Brahms simply hoped his Double Concerto for violin and cello 'might deliver some fun'. But it turned out to be one of his most unique and strangely touching works, a piece full of fantasy and invention that has been described as an 'endless love song' between two instruments, 'an opera without words'.

WED 22:00 Free Thinking (b03wpv1q)

Cesar Franck (1822-1890)

Holmes and the Mystery Romance

Were they in love? Did anything happen? The rumour mills of musical Paris were never more active than when the whiskyery César Franck appeared to pay inordinate attention to a glamorous female pupil, one Augusta Holmès. Donald Macleod continues his account of the life and times of the Belgian composer, looking at the turbulent background to his celebrated piano quintet. Now a professor of organ at the Paris Conservatoire, Franck continued to try his hand unsuccessfully at composing for the opera stage. With a plot deemed too violent for public performance, he salvaged some measure of self-respect by getting some of the music performed as a ballet - he even danced to some of it whilst in his nightshirt!

THU 19:30 Radio 3 Live in Concert (b03w0j88)

BBC SSO - Schumann, Beethoven, Copland

The BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Andrew Manze, performs Schumann and Copland, and is joined by Steven Osborne for Beethoven's 3rd Piano Concerto.

Live from City Halls, Glasgow
Presented by Ian Skelly

Copland: Quiet City
Beethoven: Piano Concerto No 3 in C minor

8.20 Interval

Although Irwin Shaw's play Quiet City is largely forgotten, Copland's evocative music survives. During tonight's interval, in a specially written response to the music, performed at Glasgow's City Halls, Scottish writer Louise Welsh explores the city at night and the blurred lines between the natural world and the built environment.

8.40

Schumann: Symphony No 2 in C major

Steven Osborne (piano)
BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra
Andrew Manze (conductor)

As its bluesy trumpet and cor anglais melodies dialogue against gentle string harmonies, Copland's theatre music for Quiet City can be heard as an evocation of the isolation and loneliness of city life in the 1930s. In a more cheerful vein, conductor Andrew Manze, renowned for his work in the classical repertoire, continues the complete Beethoven Piano Concerto cycle with Steven Osborne and the BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra. Tonight they perform the 3rd Concerto, in which the joyful C-major conclusion seems to pre-echo the finale of this evening's concert.

And in spite of Schumann's troubled mental state at the time of writing, his Symphony No. 2 seems to sing with optimism. The great C-major work journeys over the course of its four movements from an exploratory chorale-like opening, through a vivacious scherzo, and a tender and searching Adagio, towards its ebullient and uncompromisingly triumphant conclusion.

Amy Chua, Versailles by Peter Gill, Spitting Image

Amy Chua and Jed Rubenfeld talk to Anne McElvoy about the impact of education, culture and religion on success. Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mother was a parenting memoir which brought Amy Chua criticism and even death threats from people objecting to her disciplinarian attitude to motherhood. Her new book, written with her husband, is called The Triple Package: What Really Determines Success.

Versailles, Peter Gill's new play at the Donmar Theatre in London takes its inspiration from the peace negotiations at the end of the First World War. We have a first night review.

Cesar Franck (1822-1890)

The Final Years of Pere Franck

Donald Macleod completes this week's look at the life and works of the Belgian composer, César Franck. In France, Franck was made a knight of the Legion of Honour for his services to the Paris Conservatoire, but it was in Belgium that he enjoyed some of his few successes. One of these was the premiere of his violin sonata, composed as a wedding present for his compatriot Ysaye, and first performed at the wedding breakfast! Further strain on his own marriage came with the composition of his erotically-charged symphonic poem, Psyché; Mme Franck 'mislayed' her tickets to the first performance. Franck was eventually struck down in the prime of life through the most banal of accidents, involving a horse-drawn bus, and he ended his days completing a final testament to his profound religious faith - his Three Chorales for organ.

Live from the Barbican Centre, London
Presented by Petroc Trelawny

Beethoven: Triple Concerto for violin, cello and piano*

20.05 Interval: Petroc Trelawny's selection of interval music

20.25

Rimsky-Korsakov: Sheherazade

BBC Symphony Orchestra
Maxim Vengerov (violin/conductor)
Antonio Meneses (cello)
Igor Levit (piano)
Andrew Litton (conductor*)

Three of the best soloists working today join together to perform Beethoven's elegant Triple Concerto, with the celebrated Russian violin virtuoso Maxim Vengerov and his hand-picked choice of collaborators, under the direction of Andrew Litton. In his musical version of Sheherazade's night of magnificent tales, Rimsky-Korsakov conjured magic, propulsion and beauty in some of the most intoxicating orchestral music ever written. The young sultana Scheherazade can delay her daybreak execution only by diverting the sultan with magnificent stories. She tells him of The Sea and the Shipwreck on the Rock, The Young Prince and Princess and The Festival of Baghdad. In this concert, in a similarly astonishing show of skill and dexterity, Maxim Vengerov plays the violin solos and conducts the orchestra for the seat-pinning power of Rimsky-Korsakov's Sheherazade.

FRI 22:00 The Verb (b03w0jb1)

Bulgarian Voices Angelite

Lopa Kothari with tracks from across the globe, a studio session with Bulgarian Voices Angelite, and part 5 of Commonwealth Connections with music from Namibia and Tanzania.

COMMONWEALTH CONNECTIONS

This landmark 26-part weekly series leading up to the Commonwealth Games in July features music from each of the 53 member states, reflecting the range of music and culture across the whole Commonwealth.

Music feature from Namibia:

In the Namibian bush, close to the Botswana border, two San families share their musical traditions. As one of southern Africa's oldest peoples, the San are proud of a way of life that is dying out. We hear berry-picking work songs and healing dances that have been performed for centuries. In Namibia's capital Windhoek, singer-songwriter Elemotho is also preserving Namibian traditions through his music. He explains how his childhood in the Kalahari Desert has influenced his songs.

Heritage track from Tanzania:

Suleman Nyambui Mujaya struck silver for Tanzania in the 5000 metres at the Moscow Olympics in 1980. He stayed in sport and is now General Secretary of Athletics Tanzania. His chosen artist is Best Nasso, and the track is Narudi Kijijini, a warning for young Africans leaving their villages that life in the big city might not be all it's cracked up to be.

Session with Bulgarian Voices Angelite:

Formed from the ashes of the old State Television Choir by the State Choir's manager Tanja Andreeva, The Bulgarian Voices Angelite have become one of the most renowned vocal ensembles from the Balkans. The choir comprises 19 female voices, under the leadership of Georgy Petkov, and creates a unique blend of classical and folk traditions and an enchanting array of vocal sounds. Their new album 'Angelite' is out now on German label Jaro.
