SAT 12:15 Music Matters (b0801hkr)

Classical Music's Diversity Deficit: BAME Composers

Tom Service profiles the African-American minimalist composer, Julius Eastman, and hosts a debate at Radio 3's Inclusion and Diversity in Composition conference in Manchester.

Julius Eastman - profile of a lost talent

Born in 1940, Julius Eastman was an unpredictable and charismatic personality, and an unforgettable presence in every musical scene he was a part of. As a gay black composer and performer, his life was markedly different to many of his colleagues in the music scenes of the time. Yet the brilliance of his musicianship led to invitations to perform and teach at the most prestigious American institutions, as well as his performance on a seminal recording of Peter Maxwell Davies' 1969 masterpiece, Eight Songs for a Mad King.

But Julius Eastman's life spiralled out of control in the 1980s. He was eventually evicted from his home, his scores were impounded by the New York police, and he died alone at the age of just 49.

To reflect on the importance of Julius Eastman's music and influence, Tom speaks to Mary Jane Leach, the co-editor of a recent book on the composer, about her project to search out his surviving music; to Petr Kotic, founder of the SEM Ensemble in Buffalo which Eastman joined in the 1970s; and to the African-American composer George E Lewis, who worked with him in the experimental music scene of New York.

Diversity in Composition - shaping an agenda for change to commissioning, programming, and performing contemporary classical music, BAME voices are not represented. At this week's Conference on Diversity and Inclusion in Composition in Manchester, convened by BBC Radio 3 and BASCA (British Academy of Songwriters, Composers and Authors), Music Matters hosted a discussion to explore what an agenda for change might look like.

On the panel were the American composer Jeffrey Mumford; Susanna Eastburn, Chief Executive of UK's foremost new music charity, Sound and Music; Rob Adediran, Executive Director of London Music Masters, an organisation which champions diversity and the role of the community in classical music; and the British composer Samantha Fernando.

SAT 13:00 Saturday Classics (b0801hkt)

Roderick Williams: Song

Baritone and composer Roderick Williams presents a second personal selection of song-themed music. This programme is devoted to foreign-language song, and music inspired by it, by composers including Schubert, Fauré and Rachmaninov.

SAT 15:00 Sound of Cinema (b0801hkw)

Black British cinema

Matthew Sweet with a selection of music outlining a brief history of Black British cinema, from the work of Paul Robeson in the 1930s to recent films such as "Belle" and "Twelve Years A Slave".

The American actor and singer Paul Robeson made a terrific impact on the UK when he arrived here in the 1930s, performing Jerome Kern's "Showboat" at Drury Lane and appearing in British films of the period such as "King Solomon's Mines"; "Song of Freedom" and "Sanders of the River".

The programme goes on to feature music from films such as "Pool of London" from the '50s, and jazz-infused social realist films such as "A Taste Of Honey" and "Sapphire"; to films such as "Babylon" and "Pressure" (the first feature-length drama to be directed in Britain by a black film maker), and culminates in some of the more recent restorative history films such as "Belle" and "Twelve Years A Slave".

Broadcast as part of Radio 3's exploration of issues of diversity and inclusion, connecting audiences with pioneering music and culture.

Erik Truffaz and his Quartet

Julian Joseph with a performance by French jazz trumpeter Erik Truffaz and his quartet featuring Benoît Corboz (keyboard), Marcello Giuliani (electric bass) and drummer Arthur Hnatek. The quartet mix elements of jazz fusion, funk and hip-hop into their energetic live performances as can be heard on this set recorded at Cully Jazz Festival, Switzerland on the shores of Lake Geneva. Plus an interview with legendary saxophonist Sonny Rollins and a preview of the 2016 London Jazz Festival.

SAT 18:30 Opera on 3 (b0801hl2)

Verdi' Il Trovatore

Verdi's Il Trovatore from the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, conducted by Gianandrea Nosedà with star tenor Francesco Meli as Manrico and Lianna Haroutounian as Leonora.

Il Trovatore was one of the great trio of operas Verdi wrote within a couple of years in the 1850s, along with Rigoletto and La Traviata. It was one of Verdi's most popular operas in his lifetime and remains so today, with the Anvil Chorus one of the best known moments of the opera's 'gypsy' music. The melodramatic plot involves a love triangle between Leonora, who loves Manrico, and the Count di Luna, Manrico's sworn enemy and, unbeknown to him, his long-lost brother who also loves Leonora. The story is complicated further by Manrico's mother, Azucena, whose desire for revenge costs the lives of the lovers Leonora and Manrico. The story demands a cast of four fine voices to take the lead roles, and this performance has just that: the soprano Lianna Haroutounian sings the role of Leonora, with mezzo-soprano Ekaterina Semenchuk as the gypsy Azucena, tenor Francesco Meli as her supposed son Manrico, and the baritone Zeljko Lucic as the Count di Luna. The Chorus and Orchestra of Covent Garden is conducted by Verdi specialist Gianandrea Nosedà in the recent production by David Bosch. Martin Handley introduces the performance, recorded earlier this summer.

Count di Luna Zeljko Lucic (Baritone)
Leonora Lianna Haroutounian (Soprano)
Azucena Ekaterina Semenchuk (Mezzo-soprano)
Manrico Francesco Meli (Tenor)
Ferrando Maurizio Muraro (Bass)
Ines Jennifer Davis (Soprano)

Royal Opera House Chorus
Royal Opera House Orchestra
Gianandrea Nosedà (Conductor).

SAT 21:30 Between the Ears (b0801hl4)

Between Ballard's Ears

J.G. Ballard's early fiction is full of sonorous surrealism. In this special edition of Between the Ears we go Between Ballard's Ears. Two new, specially commissioned, binaural adaptations of his work reveal the soundscape of one of Britain's greatest imaginations. In Track 12, adapted by Brian Sibley, two men listen in to the fantastically amplified results of microsonics but a different, deadlier game is under way. Anton Lesser and Elliot Levey star. In Venus Smiles, adapted by Frank Cottrell Boyce, an enigmatic artist's sonic sculpture brings chaos and transformation to the luxury resort of Vermilion Sands. Christine Bottomley, Carl Prekopp, Keziah Joseph and David Sterne star in a story of death and transfiguration.

Sitar performed by Sheema Mukherjee. Sonic realization Mark Burman and Donald MacDonald.

SAT 22:00 Hear and Now (b0801hl6)

Hannah Kendall's new opera The Knife of Dawn

Tom Service presents the world premiere of Hannah Kendall's opera The Knife of Dawn, recorded earlier this month at the Roundhouse in Camden, London. Plus music by Daniel Kidane, Samantha Fernando and Shiva Feshareki.

Part of Radio 3's ongoing celebration of composers from the UK's black, Asian and minority ethnic communities, in conjunction with this week's Diversity and Inclusion in Composition conference at the Royal Northern College of Music in Manchester, where Daniel Kidane was among the guest speakers.

The Knife of Dawn explores the life and mind of Guyanese poet and political activist Martin Carter as he fights for his country's independence from Britain. It's set in 1953, when Carter was imprisoned for "spreading dissension". In this, her operatic debut, Hannah Kendall sets five of Carter's own poems, 'In a Great Silence'; 'Listening to the Land'; 'This is the Dark Time My Love'; 'The Knife of Dawn' and 'Not Hands Like Mine', which have been drawn into a moving new libretto by Tessa McWatt.

9.30am

Take part in our daily musical challenge: can you remember the television show or film that featured this piece of classical music?

10am

Rob's guest this week is the stand-up comedian Al Murray. Best known for his alter-ego 'The Pub Landlord', Al has performed sell-out shows around the world, as well as making television appearances at The Royal Variety Performance and Live at the Apollo. Al has written books in his pub landlord persona, including The Pub Landlord's Book of British Common Sense and Let's Re-Great Britain. Outside of his pub landlord character, Al has presented Al Murray's Road to Berlin, about the last phase of the Second World War, for the Discovery Channel and Al Murray's German Adventure for BBC Four. He is currently touring his new show 'Let's Go Backwards Together'. Al shares a selection of his favourite classical music, including works by Bach, Handel and Orff, and talks about playing percussion, and reminisces about his performance on the triangle in Dvorák's New World Symphony, every day at 10am.

10.30am

Power of Three - The next episode in a 70-part daily series of pioneering sounds from the BBC Third Programme and Radio 3 archives presented by David Hendy.

Music in Time: Renaissance

Rob places Music in Time. Today the spotlight is on the late Renaissance era and Victoria's Requiem Mass, a work that seems to epitomize the sea-change in harmonic practice that was taking place around the turn of the 16th and 17th centuries, as the old Church Modes gradually gave way to the new system of tonality.

11am

Rob's artists of the week are the late Sir Neville Marriner's orchestra, the Academy of St Martin in the Fields, a superb gathering of players who can turn their hands to virtually any repertoire and make a handsome job of it. We'll hear them in masterpieces from Bach to Bartók, dropping in on Mozart, Mendelssohn and Tchaikovsky along the way.

Johann Michael Haydn (1737-1806), A Choral Scholar

Donald Macleod explores the pre-Salzburg days of the man who would become known as the Salzburg Haydn - Joseph's brother Michael Haydn.

Having a world famous composer for a brother isn't easy. Despite being hugely respected in his own lifetime and thought, especially in sacred music, to be at least the equal of Franz Joseph, Michael Haydn has not been kindly dealt with by history. A modest man, comfortable in his Salzburg surrounds, Michael Haydn's lack of ambition seems to have held him back, and his works are rarely heard today. This week Donald Macleod tries to redress the balance by exploring the life and work of a composer admired and respected by Mozart, and revered by Schubert.

In today's programme, Donald explores Michael Haydn's early years as a choral scholar with his brother Joseph, and then in his first appointment to bishop Baron Adam Patachich in the town of Grosswardein.

MON 19:30 Radio 3 in Concert (b0801n3r)

BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra - Busoni, Weill

The BBC SSO and Ilan Volkov perform Kurt Weill's Seven

Deadly Sins with Measha Brueggergosman, alongside orchestral works by Busoni.

Recorded at City Halls, Glasgow
Presented by Jamie MacDougall

Busoni: Berceuse élégiaque, Op 42
Busoni: Sarabande and Cortege, Op. 51, (2 Studies for Doktor Faust)

8.05 Interval8.25

Weill: The Seven Deadly Sins

Kurt Weill's Seven Deadly Sins was written to a libretto by Bertolt Brecht as a "sung ballet", and recounts the allegorical adventures of the title character Anna, as she explores life and all its temptations. Written in an evocative and recognizably Berlin-esque style, it evokes the heady turmoil of the interwar years with its jazz inflected banjo and close-harmony vocal group. The concert opens with two orchestral pieces by Italian composer Busoni, written at the turn of the century. Perhaps most famous for his epic piano works, this pair of orchestral scores demonstrates his melodic invention and contrapuntal detail with a wider instrumental palette.

MON 21:55 Three Score and Ten (b0801n3t)

WH Auden

Ian McMillan with another episode as W.H. Auden reads 'Lullaby' and 'Song of the Devil' recorded at Poetry International on 21st August 1972, from Radio 3's programme Auden in London.

Three Score and Ten features archive recordings from the last seven decades of the Third Programme and Radio 3, with 70 remarkable poets reading their own poems. Amongst them T.S. Eliot, Dylan Thomas, Sylvia Plath, WH Auden, Seamus Heaney and Carol Ann Duffy. Plus ten brand new poems by contemporary poets commissioned specially for the series and broadcast on The Verb.

Producer: Sharon Sephton; Research by Caitlin Crawford.

MON 22:00 Music Matters (b0801hkr)

[Repeat of broadcast at 12:15 on Saturday]

MON 22:45 The Stroma Sessions (b0801n3v)

Episode 1

New Drama: 'The Blackletter Quartet', a new music ensemble, had an idea: to write and record an album on Stroma, an abandoned island off the north coast of Scotland.

Five years after the Quartet's disappearance, 'The Stroma Sessions' - a series of audio files charting the musicians time on the island and the music they created there - were discovered on the internet.

Stroma was abandoned in the early 1960s: its few remaining buildings stand dilapidated, battered by the North Sea. The four musicians sought inspiration in the ruined houses and unforgiving weather. They wanted to make music in a ghost town. The evidence suggests they found what they were looking for.

Written by Timothy X Atack
Sound design by Steve Bond
Executive producer, Sara Davies
Produced by Nicolas Jackson
Directed by Nicolas Jackson

'The Stroma Sessions' is an Afonica production for BBC Radio 3.

Music in Time: Baroque

Rob places Music in Time. Today Rob travels to the Baroque era with two movements by Bach, or rather two radically different versions of the same music: the Prelude from his Partita in E for solo violin and the sparkling showpiece for organ and orchestra, the Sinfonia to his cantata 'Wir danken dir Gott, wir danken dir'.

11am

Rob's artists of the week are the late Sir Neville Marriner's orchestra, the Academy of St Martin in the Fields, a superb gathering of players who can turn their hands to virtually any repertoire and make a handsome job of it. We'll hear them in masterpieces from Bach to Bartók, dropping in on Mozart, Mendelssohn and Tchaikovsky along the way.

Having a world famous composer for a brother isn't easy. The Overture to Nielsen's Maskerade sets the scene for a masked ball, full of vivacious energy and playful wit. Shostakovich's hugely powerful Tenth Symphony received its first performance soon after Stalin died and its opening movement speaks bleakly of suffering while the Scherzo snarls with venom. Pioneering trumpeter Hakan Hardenberger is the soloist in Peter Maxwell Davies's Concerto, with its virtuoso solo demands and rich orchestral palette. A still, calm voice here is the plainsong quoted by the composer celebrating the feast of St Francis. The sounds of birds feature too, familiar from Max's Orkney home, rather than from Assisi.

Richard Hakluyt, Man Booker Prize, Chickens in the Anthropocene, Shirley Jackson

Richard Hakluyt who died on 23 November 1616 was an English writer whose writings promoted the British colonisation of North America by the English. Nandini Das talks to Matthew Sweet about Hakluyt's travels and his legacy. Alex Clark reports live from the prize ceremony for this year's Man Booker Prize. We discuss new research into the significance of chickens in the Anthropocene and ahead of Halloween we look at the haunting writing of Shirley Jackson as a new biography of her life is published.

Hakluyt@400 events include two exhibitions: Hakluyt and Geography in Oxford 1550-1650 at Christ Church, Oxford, and The World in a Book: Hakluyt and Renaissance Discovery, at the Bodleian Library, Oxford. A two-day international conference Richard Hakluyt and the Renaissance Discovery of the World, taking place in Oxford on 24-25 November. In addition, on Sunday 27 November there will be a commemorative service in his parish at All Saints Church, Wetheringsett, Suffolk.

TUE 22:45 The Stroma Sessions (b081cmd2)
Episode 2

New drama: 'The Blackletter Quartet', a new music ensemble, had an idea: to write and record an album on Stroma, an abandoned island off the north coast of Scotland.

Five years after the Quartet's disappearance, 'The Stroma Sessions' - a series of audio files charting the musicians time on the island and the music they created there - were discovered on the internet.

Stroma was abandoned in the early 1960s: its few remaining buildings stand dilapidated, battered by the North Sea. The four musicians sought inspiration in the ruined houses and unforgiving weather. They wanted to make music in a ghost town. The evidence suggests they found what they were looking for.

The appearance of an unexpected outsider and the mysterious recording at the church have created unease amongst the musicians.

Royal Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra - Rachmaninov, Stravinsky

The Royal Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra and pianist Alexandre Tharaud play Rachmaninov and Stravinsky.

Recorded on Sunday 23 October 2016 at Liverpool Philharmonic Hall.

Presented by Stuart Flinders.

Rachmaninov: The Rock

Piano Concerto No.2

8.20: Interval

8.40: Stravinsky: Scherzo à la Russe

Rachmaninov: Symphonic Dances

Alexandre Tharaud, piano

Vasily Petrenko, conductor

Russian Revolution

Rachmaninov's sumptuous Symphonic Dances are the sound of a great artist in exile, drenched in joy, regret, and full of wonderful Rachmaninov melodies.

Vasily Petrenko has matched it with Rachmaninov's youthful poem of love and loss, The Rock, and a jazzy scherzo by Rachmaninov's Hollywood neighbour Stravinsky.

WED 21:55 Three Score and Ten (b0801r6p)

South African Art

Does art have to reflect politics and history in South Africa? Is it harder to make art now than it was in the past? As exhibitions of South African art open at the British Museum and the Fruitmarket Gallery in Edinburgh and continue at London's Whitechapel Gallery, Philip Dodd discusses the challenges of creating a visual language for a country with the artists William Kentridge, Vivienne Koorland and Gavin Jantjes.

Wagner placed his ballet not, as was then the custom, in the second act, but in the first, as a glowing tail to the overture. Thursday Opera Matinee, Wagner - The Flying Dutchman

Today's Opera Matinée is a performance of Wagner's The Flying Dutchman recorded at this year's Bayreuth Festival, conducted by Axel Kober, and the Dutchman sung by John Lundgren. Presented by Jonathan Swain.

Wagner: The Flying Dutchman

The Dutchman John Lundgren (baritone)
Daland Peter Rose (bass)
Senta Ricarda Merbeth (soprano)
Erik Andreas Schager (tenor)
Mary Nadine Weissmann (mezzo-soprano)
Daland's Steersman Benjamin Bruns (tenor)
Bayreuth Festival Chorus
Bayreuth Festival Orchestra
Axel Kober, conductor

The Flying Dutchman has been condemned for eternity to sail his ship, and only once every seven years is allowed to come ashore to seek redemption by a faithful woman. A storm has driven him to a Norwegian harbour where he moors beside Daland, who is impressed by the Dutchman's wealth. The Dutchman meets and falls for Daland's daughter, Senta, and hopes he has found his redemption in her. She eagerly accepts the Dutchman's declaration of love and his proposal, but he wrongly thinks she is unfaithful, so returns to his ship and sets sail without her.

Episode 4

'New drama: The Blackletter Quartet', a new music ensemble, had an idea: to write and record an album on Stroma, an abandoned island off the north coast of Scotland.

Five years after the Quartet's disappearance, 'The Stroma Sessions' - a series of audio files charting the musicians time on the island and the music they created there - were discovered on the internet.

Stroma was abandoned in the early 1960s: its few remaining buildings stand dilapidated, battered by the North Sea. The four musicians sought inspiration in the ruined houses and unforgiving weather. They wanted to make music in a ghost town. The evidence suggests they found what they were looking for.

Al has written books in his pub landlord persona, including The Pub Landlord's Book of British Common Sense and Let's Re-Great Britain. Outside of his pub landlord character, Al has presented Al Murray's Road to Berlin, about the last phase of the Second World War, for the Discovery Channel and Al Murray's German Adventure for BBC Four. He is currently touring his new show 'Let's Go Backwards Together'. Al shares a selection of his favourite classical music, including works by Bach, Handel and Orff, and talks about playing percussion, and reminisces about his performance on the triangle in Dvorák's New World Symphony, every day at 10am.

10.30am

Power of Three - The next episode in a 70-part daily series of pioneering sounds from the BBC Third Programme and Radio 3 archives presented by David Hendy.

Music in Time: Modern

Rob places Music in Time. Today the spotlight is on the Modern era and Melodien - Melodies - a short and ravishingly beautiful orchestral piece by the Hungarian composer György Ligeti, who's probably best known for the three works director Stanley Kubrick hijacked for the soundtrack of his 1968 film 2001: A Space Odyssey - Atmosphères, Lux Aeterna and the Requiem. In those pieces Ligeti used a technique known as micropolyphony to create dense clusters of sound, whereas in Melodien, he rediscovered the clarity of individual lines.

11am

Rob's artists of the week are the late Sir Neville Marriner's orchestra, the Academy of St Martin in the Fields, a superb gathering of players who can turn their hands to virtually any repertoire and make a handsome job of it. We'll hear them in masterpieces from Bach to Bartók, dropping in on Mozart, Mendelssohn and Tchaikovsky along the way.

Johann Michael Haydn (1737-1806), A Sad End

Having a world famous composer for a brother isn't easy. Despite being hugely respected in his own lifetime and thought, especially in sacred music, to be at least the equal of Franz Joseph, Michael Haydn has not been kindly dealt with by history. A modest man, comfortable in his Salzburg surrounds, Michael Haydn's lack of ambition seems to have held him back, and his works are rarely heard today. This week Donald Macleod tries to redress the balance by exploring the life and work of a composer admired and respected by Mozart, and revered by Schubert.

In today's programme, Donald focuses on the last years of Michael Haydn's life, a period when despite his reputation growing outside of Salzburg, within the city he was under-appreciated and became increasingly disappointed with his lot.

BBC Symphony Orchestra and Chorus - Rachmaninov, Tchaikovsky

Semyon Bychkov concludes the 'Beloved Friend' Tchaikovsky project with the BBC Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the great Symphony No. 6 'Pathétique'. In part one of the concert they are joined by the BBC Symphony Chorus and superb soloists in Tchaikovsky disciple Rachmaninov's The Bells, a colourful choral symphony to texts by Edgar Allan Poe.

'All my life I have taken pleasure in the differing moods and music of gladly chiming and mournfully tolling bells', declared Rachmaninov. As he wrote The Bells he combined this obsession with his love of church chant, and his admiration for Tchaikovsky - he even booked rooms in Rome in the very same apartment that Tchaikovsky had taken thirty years before him.

Presented by Ian Skelly

Geoffrey Hill

Ian McMillan with another episode in this fifty part series celebrating 70 years of Radio 3's recording of poets and poetry since it was launched as the Third Programme in September 1946. From The Living Poet, August 1979, Geoffrey Hill reads a selection of his poems starting with 'History as Poetry'.

Three Score and Ten features archive recordings from the last seven decades of the Third Programme and Radio 3, with 70 remarkable poets reading their own poems. Amongst them T.S. Eliot, Dylan Thomas, Sylvia Plath, WH Auden, Seamus Heaney and Carol Ann Duffy. Plus ten brand new poems by contemporary poets commissioned specially for the series and broadcast on The Verb.

FRI 22:45 The Stroma Sessions (b081cp76)

Episode 5

New drama@ 'The Blackletter Quartet', a new music ensemble, had an idea: to write and record an album on Stroma, an abandoned island off the north coast of Scotland.

Five years after the Quartet's disappearance, 'The Stroma Sessions' - a series of audio files charting the musicians time on the island and the music they created there - were discovered on the internet.

Stroma was abandoned in the early 1960s: its few remaining buildings stand dilapidated, battered by the North Sea. The four musicians sought inspiration in the ruined houses and unforgiving weather. They wanted to make music in a ghost town. The evidence suggests they found what they were looking for.

Following Nico and Sam's disappearances, Riley is in hiding from Hilde.
