SAT 11:45 Music Matters (m000661v)

AI and the future of music

What is the future of music? Is it holograms, virtual reality and AI generated music, is it to be feared or championed? Tom Service voyages into future uncharted musical territories...

He discusses the big picture with tech visionary and composer Jaron Lanier, renowned author of 'Ten Arguments for Deleting Your Social Media Accounts Right Now'; looks at virtual reality audience experiences of an orchestra with Luke Ritchie, Head of Innovation at the Philharmonia; examines the legal implications with Sophie Goossens, a lawyer working on music copyright and changing digital listening habits; checks out the Future Music conference at the Royal Northern College of Music; and hears how Robert Laidlow is using AI to compose orchestral scores. Tom also speaks to Holly Herndon, who has cultivated an AI "child" called Spawn, and then collaborated with it to make an album; and David Harrington of Kronos Quartet describes performing in concert with surveillance technology AI observing and manipulating their images on video screens.

Jess Gillam with... Evelyn, George and Emma

In a special edition of the show with BBC Ten Pieces, Jess is joined in the studio by young musicians Evelyn, George and Emma to listen to music by Brahms, Grieg, Clean Bandit and a number from the hit musical Hamilton.

SAT 13:00 Inside Music (m000cl27)

Time and melody explored by composer Caroline Shaw

Caroline Shaw is a Pulitzer Prize-winning composer, singer, and violinist. She is a member of the Grammy-winning vocal ensemble Roomful of Teeth, and has been nominated for a Grammy for 'Orange', an album of compositions played by the Attacca Quartet. She's regularly commissioned to write for international soloists and orchestras, as well as writing scores for film and TV.

Caroline's choice of music includes a sparkly Carnival overture, an anonymous 17th-century love song about some beautiful eyes, and a bass and violin duet that sounds like breathing.

She also discusses the power of repetition in music: from a viola solo that keeps coming back in her own piece Its Motion Keeps, to the 'efficiency and elegance' of Arvo Pärt's writing in Spiegel im Spiegel.

Plus, a harpsichord player who uses time delay and expression to create the illusion of dynamics in a piece by Couperin.

A series in which each week a musician explores a selection of music - from the inside.

SAT 15:00 Sound of Cinema (m000cl29)

Coming of Age

In the week that sees the release of Greta Gerwig's 'Little Women' Matthew Sweet focuses his attention on music for films that explore the idea of coming of age. The programme features music for the new film by Alexandre Desplat, as well as other films on the subject, and also looks back on previous scores for screen adaptations of Louisa M Alcott's classic novel, including Max Steiner's classic 1933 version.

Featured scores include: Leonard Rosenman's 'Rebel Without A Cause'; Jean Constantin's 'Les Quatre Cents Coups'; Michel Legrand's 'The Summer of 42'; Nino Rota's 'Amarcord'; Ron Grainer's 'To Sir With Love'; Richard Addinsell's 'Tom Brown's Schooldays'; Danny Elfman's 'Good Will Hunting'; Jo Hishiashi's 'Spirited Away'; Nicholas Britell's 'Moonlight' and Jon Brion's 'Ladybird'.

The initiative has been running yearly since 1965 and is organised by the European Broadcasting Union.

Also in the programme, Panamanian pianist Danilo Pérez shares some of the music that inspires him. He reflects on formative jam sessions with his father and pays tributes to his other great mentors, Wayne Shorter and Dizzy Gillespie.

Plus, Kevin looks back at some of the jazz highlights of 2019.

SAT 18:30 Opera on 3 (m000cl2h)

Death in Venice

Britten's final opera in a new production from the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. Based on a novella by Thomas Mann. The German writer Gustav von Aschenbach travels to Venice in search of creative inspiration, but his thoughts are distracted by a beautiful Polish youth, with whom he becomes obsessed. Mark Padmore sings the troubled writer, and Gerald Finley the seven characters who appear throughout the opera to lead him to his eventual demise. Kate Molleson presents and is joined in the box by Dr Lucy Walker from the Britten-Pears Foundation to discuss Britten's late great opera.

Sarah Walker with a sparkling musical mix

Sarah conjures up music that pictures a series of colourful scenes - from a fencing lesson and children lost in the woods to the magical tale of a Russian snow maiden.

And there are many gorgeous vocal sounds too, from the King's Singers and the choirboys of St Thomas's Church in Leipzig, to jazz singer Diana Krall, who gives the ultimate fireside Christmas tune the most laid back performance ever.

Sarah also reveals a bizarre early classical piece that could have been written yesterday: a vivid musical description of what went on at night in the streets of 17th-century Madrid.

Darcey Bussell

Darcey Bussell became principal dancer of the Royal Ballet at the age of only twenty; she went on to become a household name thanks to her seven years as a judge on Strictly Come Dancing, a job she unexpectedly stepped down from earlier this year.

In conversation with Michael Berkeley, she looks back at a career which started when, against the wishes of her mother, she went to ballet school at thirteen – and was desperately unhappy, thinking she'd made the worst mistake of her life. Alone, away from her family, she used to listen to Mozart's Requiem again and again. She had little hope of becoming a star ballerina as she was "too tall" at five foot seven, and "not British-looking"; what this amounted to is that most British male dancers were not tall enough to partner her. But then she met choreographer Kenneth Macmillan, and he saw her potential. She reflects candidly on the "disciplines and sacrifices" of a life devoted to dance: the long hours training, dancing till your stamina runs out and you literally can't feel your legs. Tchaikovsky's Sleeping Beauty pushed her to the limit. She reveals how becoming a judge on Strictly gave her new confidence to speak in public for the first time and why she doesn't mind being labelled as the judge who was "too nice". She talks too about creating a new post-performance life out of the glare of the public eye, her mission to bring dance to all schoolchildren, about injuries and the battle for fitness, and about the toll dancing has taken on her feet.

Her music choices range from the intensely serious – Stravinsky's 'Agon, Poulenc's Gloria, the Mozart and Faure Requiems - to Dinah Washington's "Mad about the Boy" and "Roxanne" by The Police.

Drink and No Drink

Much drink will be taken over Christmas and New Year. People will enjoy and regret this. Some will look forward ruefully to dry January. A century ago the prospect for Americans was dry forever, because Prohibition was introduced in January 1920. In this Words and Music, Drink No Drink, Joe Bannister and Sinead MacInnes read works that celebrate booze and reflects too the damage it can do to people and their relationships.

Jack Falstaff praises the virtues of sack. Dorothy Parker delineates the slide from 'just the one' to 'never again'. For Leopold Bloom, in Ulysses, the lingering flavour of burgundy triggers the memory of a tryst; for Laurie Lee imbibing cider leads to the erotic encounter itself. Mahler and Mozart encourage cheerful drinking and Sussex folk singers Bob and Ron Copper praise good ale. There are two stunning hangovers, in prose from Lucky Jim by Kingsley Amis and song, in Loudon Wainwright III's April Fool's Day Morn, as poignant as its protagonist's behaviour is appalling.

SUN 18:45 Between the Ears (m000cp1f)
The Escape of the Zebra from the Zoo

War is often described as a dehumanising process. But what happened to Britain's non-human inhabitants in this terrible conflict?

In a painting in Manchester City Art Gallery, a zebra rears up, black and white striking against the terrible night scene. The sky reddens in the distance from a vast explosion in 1940. War artist, Carel Weight painted the zebra that galloped out of the zoo in to the maddened city. The animal escaped unscathed, but thousands of animals didn't.

Four panels show the journey of the terrified zebra and close on his hooves are sketchy figures, trying to capture the fleeing animal. One of them may have been a keeper at London Zoo at the time, called Shelley. In this feature, it's an imaginary Shelley who tells us what happened, recalling the night the Zebra House was bombed, along with the goings on at city zoos during World War Two. Between archive footage, the rumble and shock of explosions, the voices of non-human creatures and of human historians, we hear how animals in zoos fared, along with the terrible fate of 400,000 cats and dogs, killed in September 1939, on the orders of their anxious owners who feared the onslaught of war.

It was at London Zoo that Julian Huxley, then Secretary of the Zoological Society, would try and spare the animals the sounds of bombing and sirens drowning out the destruction with gramophones playing the music of Sibelius.

Animals were central to the way Churchill imagined the conflict. Visiting London Zoo in 1939, as war loomed ever closer, Churchill learned that the zookeepers were primed to shoot top predators: the lions and tigers if they escaped. As recorded by Huxley in his memoirs, Churchill replied 'What a pity!' before staring into the middle distance and conjuring for him an extraordinary and disturbing apocalyptic fantasy. Churchill's vision was a London of fire, burning wreckage, the noises of war, and big cats roaming the bombed out streets in search of dead bodies.

Peter Markinker is the voice of Shelley.

Contributors include the historians Marianne Sommer, Richard Sam Deese, Hilda Keene and Andy Flack; Archivist Sarah Broadhurst and Curator Hannah Williamson.

Dvořák: Symphony No 9 in E minor, 'From the New World'

Leonidas Kavakos (violin)
Vienna Philharmonic
Andrés Orozco-Estrada (conductor)

Dvořák's 'New World' Symphony, with its wistful slow movement, is the centrepiece of the second concert from the Vienna Philharmonic – a programme of Central European works that showcases the orchestra's distinctively rich sound. Andrés Orozco-Estrada pairs it with the composer's colourful, folk-infused tone poem The Noonday Witch, in which a mother's threats inadvertently summon a witch into her home. Cinematic drama is also a hallmark of Korngold's richly orchestrated and unashamedly romantic Violin Concerto, performed here by soloist Leonidas Kavakos.

Judith Weir: Forest

Jean Sibelius: Symphony No 5 in E flat major (final version, 1919)

Nora Fischer (singer)

BBC Symphony Orchestra
Sakari Oramo (conductor)

A Prom celebrating Nature in all her moods. A flight of 16 swans was the catalyst for Sibelius's stirring Fifth Symphony, with its ambiguous, mysterious ending. We hear the composer's final 1919 version - after the thrilling UK premiere of the original 1915 version performed at the BBC Proms earlier this season by the BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra. While for Judith Weir it was nature's process – forests sprouting outwards from a single seed, endlessly growing and multiplying – that offered inspiration.

Nature turns menacing in Mussorgsky's vivid tone-poem A Night on the Bare Mountain. Boundary-breaking singer Nora Fischer is the soloist in the UK premiere of The Only One by Dutch composer Louis Andriessen, who turned 80 this year, setting texts by the Flemish poet Delphine Lecompte.

MON 19:30 BBC Proms (m000cq66)

2019 Repeats

Prom 65: Mozart, Beethoven and Richard Strauss

From the BBC Proms: another chance to hear Constantinos

Carydis conducts the Deutsche Kammerphilharmonie Bremen and soprano Danae Kontora in Mozart and Strauss, plus Beethoven Symphony No. 7.

Presented at the Royal Albert Hall by Ian Skelly.

Mozart: The Abduction from the Seraglio – overture; Aria:
'Popoli di Teggaglia! – Io non chiedo, eterni dei'; Cassation No.
1 in G major – Andante; Aria: 'No, no, che non sei capace'; Symphony No. 35 in D major, 'Haffner'

c.8.25

Interval: Georgia Mann introduces an exploration of the connections between the music of Strauss and Mozart, with musicologists Barbara Eichner and William Mival.

c.8.45

Richard Strauss: Capriccio – sextet; Ariadne auf Naxos –
'Grossmächtige Prinzessin!'
Beethoven: Symphony No 7 in A major

Danae Kontora (soprano)

Deutsche Kammerphilharmonie Bremen
Constantinos Carydis (conductor)

Greek coloratura soprano Danae Kontora makes her Proms debut with a sequence of Mozart and Strauss arias, while Mozart's 'Haffner' Symphony is filled with operatic ornamentation and dramatic effects.

The vitality of Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 led to its being famously described by Wagner as 'the apotheosis of the dance'.

TUE 17:45 Words and Music (m0003sg9)

So Emotional

There are seven universal emotions: happiness, sadness, anger, fear, disgust, surprise and contempt. Readers Brid Brennan and Iain Glen take us on an emotional roller coaster with words ranging from the 17th century lushness of Milton to the high impact sparseness of 'insta-poet' Rupi Kaur.

Our emotional journey begins with the laughter of a four year old, Judy Garland bidding us to 'Get Happy' and Jack Underwood's touching portrait of Happiness. But sadness has a beauty of its own and Milton hails Melancholy, while the 14th century mystic Margery Kempe immerses herself in the misery of Christ's suffering. No one does misery like Morrissey so The Smiths are here to tell us: Heaven Knows I'm Miserable Now.
 Dylan Thomas and Elvis Costello deliver some explosive anger, while Dorothy Parker and Lulu have a surprise for their disappointing lovers. Roald Dahl's truly disgusting description of Mr Twit's beard will put you off extravagant facial hair for life, while Henry James and Benjamin Britten deliver the fear-factor in the spine-chilling Turn of the Screw. Our emotional journey ends with the chillingly inhuman contempt of Brett Easton Ellis' American Psycho and a look back to the medieval practice of fasting to fine-tune human emotions.

You can find a collection of discussion programmes exploring different emotions recorded at the 2019 Free Thinking Festival in a collection on the programme website

New Year, New Games

You may have found a shiny new console in your Christmas stocking, or perhaps you're working out what to get in the sales - or going slow after another New Year's Eve party...

Luckily Sound Of Gaming returns for a New Year's Day special. Jessica Curry plays the best video game music to bring you back to life after the night before, picks some of her favourite games and soundtracks from the past year and looks into her 2020 crystal ball at what may be the biggest scores of the New Year.

WED 16:30 New Generation Artists (m000cq0t)

Eric Lu plays Chopin's Funeral March Sonata

New Generation Artists: Kate Molleson introduces five of the musicians who are joining Radio 3's prestigious young artist programme this year.

Eric Lu, the hugely popular winner of the Leeds International Competition plays Handel and Chopin, the nineteen year old violinist Johan Dalene plays two miniatures from Scandinavia and British viola player Timothy Ridout plays Glinka. Also today, Ema Nikolovska, who is still a student at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama, sings a haunting melody from the land of her birth and the charismatic jazz guitarist Rob Luft reveals some of his latest tracks - all recorded at the BBC's studios.

Handel: Chaconne HWV 435
 Eric Lu (piano)

Stenhammer Two Sentimental Romances, Op. 28
 Johan Dalene (violin), Nicola Eimer (piano)

Macdonian trad: Jovano Jovanke - Macedonian traditional song
 Barber: A Green Lowland of Pianos
 Medtner: Twilight
 Schubert: Auf dem Wasser zu Singen
 Ema Nikolovska (mezzo soprano), Jonathan Ware (piano)

Glinka: Viola Sonata in d minor, G. iv3
 Timothy Ridout (viola), Artur Pizarro (piano)

Chopin: Piano Sonata No. 2 in B-flat minor, Op. 35
 Eric Lu (piano)

Rob Luft: One Day in Romentino, Synaesthesia and Snow Country
 Rob Luft (electric guitar) with Joe Wright (tenor sax), Tom McCredie (bass guitar) Corrie Dick (drums), Joe Webb (keyboards)

Each year, Radio 3 selects six or seven remarkable musicians to join the scheme for two years each. During that time they record in the BBC's studios, perform with the BBC's orchestras and take part in some of the UK's leading music festivals. Not surprisingly, the list of alumni reads like a Who's Who of the most exciting musicians of the past two decades. In this series, we can catch those artists near the beginnings of their journeys. Starting on New Year's Day, we hear for the first time from the exciting artists who have recently joined the scheme: the nineteen year old Swedish violinist Johan Dalene, the viola player Timothy Ridout, the Macedonian-born mezzo soprano Ema Nikolovska and the pianists Alexander Gadjiev and Eric Lu. The scheme also welcomes the jazz guitarist Rob Luft and the Consone Quartet, its first ever period instrument string quartet.

The scheme celebrates its twentieth next year with a special day of programming on Radio 3 on Saturday 01 February

WED 18:15 Words and Music (m00016sr)

Beginnings and Endings

One of the most fundamental questions we can ask is 'where do I come from?' And poets, philosophers, religions and scientists down the ages and across cultures have fashioned theories and stories to try and answer that question. We can hear their work in Norse mythology, Cherokee creation beliefs and Darwin's theory of evolution. But what came before the beginning? One theory was chaos and Rebel offers us glimpses of that in musical form. There are also creative beginnings - a 14-year-old Aretha Franklin recorded in her father's church and Prince rehearsing a new song (Purple Rain) alone at night in his studio. Mary Shelley's Frankenstein stands as a warning of the risks of scientific experimentation while the orphan Pip, from Dickens' Great Expectations, is forced to create his own origin story from the tiniest of clues. Birth is the theme of Gerald Finzi's cantata, Dies Natalis, which sets to music the poetry of Thomas Traherne - about being unborn, emerging into the world and what it is to be human.

Endings come in the shape of Haydn's false endings, Caryl Churchill's apocalyptic visions and the final words from Samuel Beckett's The Unnamable "I can't go on, I'll go on." There are lost loves and lost countries - Amineh Abou Kerech - a 15-year-old Syrian migrant - writes a poetic lament for her homeland accompanied by 19-year-old Palestinian composer Nay Barghothi.

The readers are Julie Hesmondhalgh and Joan Iyiola

Orchestre Révolutionnaire et Romantique
Sir John Eliot Gardiner (conductor)

Interval at approx 8.55pm: Andrew McGegor talks to historian and broadcaster Sarah Lenton and music historian Flora Willson about Berlioz's Benvenuto Cellini.

Sir John Eliot Gardiner brings his five-year series of Berlioz performances to a triumphant close, and this year's 150thanniversary celebrations to a spectacular climax, with the composer's rarely performed opera Benvenuto Cellini, based on the life and loves of the Renaissance sculptor – culminating in the forging of a vast masterwork. With its sprawling storytelling and vastly demanding score, this is a piece built for the scope of the Royal Albert Hall. American tenor Michael Spyres sings the title-role.

Viennese Connections - Opera Matinee

Continuing his celebration of music making from Vienna for the New Year, Tom McKinney introduces a recording made last year at the Vienna State Opera of Verdi's monumental late Shakespeare inspired tragedy, Otello.

Unlike other Verdi operas, Otello was incorporated into the repertoire of the Vienna Opera almost immediately after its world première in 1888. The Vienna State Opera has since put on nearly 500 performances of Verdi's last opera, in seven different productions. This recent production was staged by Adrian Noble and conducted by Myung-Whun Chung.

THU 17:00 New Generation Artists (m000cl8y)

Alexander Gadjevi plays Scriabin and Liszt

New Generation Artists: following on from yesterday's programme, the remaining two artists to join Radio 3's prestigious young artist scheme are heard in their debut BBC studio recordings. There's also more today from the mezzo Ema Nikolovska and the remarkable touch of the pianist Alexander Gadjevi is heard in a sequence of miniatures by Scriabin and a fiendish study by Liszt; the period instruments of the Consone Quartet shed new light on Haydn and Simon Hoefe, who left the scheme at the end of last year, is heard in a sneak preview of his forthcoming recording of the ever-popular Trumpet Concerto by Haydn.
Presented by Kate Molleson.

Liszt: Transcendental Étude No. 4 in D minor, "Mazeppa"
S.139

Scriabin: Feuillet d'album op.45 n.1, Poeme op.32 n.1, Etude op.8 n.8, op.42 n.5, Preludes op.16 nos.2,3 and 4
Alexander Gadjevi (piano)

Brahms: Der Gang zum Liebchen, Op.48 No.1; Lerchengesang, Op.70 No.2; Standchen, Op.106 No.1
Ema Nikolovska (mezzo-soprano), Joseph Middleton (piano)

Haydn: String Quartet in D major, Op.20 No.4
The Consone Quartet

Haydn: Trumpet Concerto in E flat
Simon Hoefe (trumpet),
BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra, Duncan Ward (conductor)

Each year, Radio 3 selects six or seven remarkable musicians to join the scheme for two years each. During that time they record in the BBC's studios, perform with the BBC's orchestras and take part in some of the UK's leading music festivals. Not surprisingly, the list of alumni reads like a Who's Who of the most exciting musicians of the past two decades. In this series, we can catch those artists near the beginnings of their journeys.
Starting on New Year's Day, we hear for the first time from the exciting artists who have recently joined the scheme: the nineteen-year-old Swedish violinist Johan Dalene, the viola player Timothy Ridout, the Macedonian-born mezzo-soprano Ema Nikolovska and the pianists Alexander Gadjevi and Eric Lu. The scheme also welcomes the jazz guitarist Rob Luft and the Consone Quartet, its first-ever period instrument string quartet.

BBC Proms: Marc Albrecht conducts the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, with soloists Christine Goerke and Stephen Gould, in music by Wagner, Franck and Weber.

From the Royal Albert Hall, London

Presented by Ian Skelly

Carl Maria von Weber: Der Freischütz – Overture
 Richard Wagner: Siegfried – Forest Murmurs César Franck: Le chasseur maudit

c. 20:15 Interval
 In the third of our series on Henry Wood, Hannah French explores the Proms founder-conductor's relationship with Wagner's music.

 Richard Wagner: Götterdämmerung – Dawn and Siegfried's Rhine Journey; Duet 'Zu neuen Taten, teurer Hilde'; Siegfried's Death and Funeral March; Brünnhilde's Immolation Scene

Christine Goerke (soprano)
 Stephen Gould (tenor)
 Royal Philharmonic Orchestra
 Marc Albrecht (conductor)

Composer-themed evenings were a distinctive and popular feature of Henry Wood's early Proms seasons: if it was Monday, it was Wagner Night.

We revive this tradition with a concert whose first half explores the enchanted forest (both beguiling and darkly supernatural) – a key symbol of the German Romantic movement.

The second half presents pivotal scenes from Götterdämmerung, the climax of Wagner's four-opera magnum opus The Ring of the Nibelung – including Siegfried's Death and Funeral Music and the vocal tour de force of Brünnhilde's Immolation Scene.

NDR Radio Philharmonic Orchestra
Andrew Manze (conductor)

Proms founder-conductor Henry Wood's tradition of composer-themed nights continues here with Beethoven.

The composer's revolutionary Fifth Symphony provides the climax of a programme that also includes music from his dramatic 'rescue' opera Fidelio.

Bach's music was a passion shared by Beethoven and Wood, and is represented here by Elgar's orchestration of the Fantasia and Fugue in C minor for organ.

FRI 18:15 Words and Music (b095q2xc)

Mindfulness and 'I': the sense of self

Poetry, prose and music reflecting on the meaning of our existence. This edition takes you through an imagined mindfulness session, opening up a path of self-awareness. The programme flows as a carefully driven stream of consciousness, but also aims to place the listener in a pre-meditative state. It's a personal journey into your inner-self so the texts mostly an explore the first person, mirroring ordinary human interaction, through feelings like love and anguish, whilst also revealing deeply felt responses to our everyday contact with the outer world, with nature and our environment.

Prose and verse, read by Aiysha Hart and Jonathan Aris, come from writers and thinkers from both East and West, ancient and new, such as Hermann Hesse, Emily Dickinson, Walt Whitman, George Eliot, Octavio Paz, W.B. Yeats, Ralph Waldo Emerson, John Stuart Mill, Jorge Luis Borges, T.S. Eliot, Rabindranath Tagore, Carl Jung, as well as traditional Chinese poets, among them Du Fu and Li Po.

Readings:

Walt Whitman: Song of Myself from Leaves of Grass
Lao Tzu: There is no need to run outside

Kabir: Don't go outside

Carl Jung: The attainment of wholeness

W.B. Yeats: Still Water

John Stuart Mill: The Art of Living

Oliver Wendell Holmes: What lies behind us
