9.30am Building a Library

Sarah Willis chooses her favourite recording of Richard Strauss's Horn Concerto No. 2 in E flat major, AV132.

For Romantic Austro-German composers, the horn was an instrument freighted with associations of forest, folklore and heroism. But no composer knew the horn and its possibilities like Richard Strauss: throughout a career beginning in the late 19th century and spanning eight decades, Strauss's orchestral and operatic scores are littered with hundreds of wonderful horn moments, exploiting every aspect of the instrument's range and character. In 1942, 60 years after he had written his first horn concerto (for his father Franz, Europe's foremost horn virtuoso), Strauss dedicated his second 'to the memory my father'. It's a nostalgic work and, like the first concerto, fiendishly difficult to play. But it sums up Strauss's long and affectionate relationship with the horn: the heroic and rhapsodic first movement, followed by a radiant, long-breathed Andante which is capped by a rollicking finale.

SAT 11:45 Music Matters (m000q393)

Making Music in Isolation

Ahead of a concert with the Bournemouth Symphony Orchestra, Tom talks to the winner of the 2020 Diapason d'or de l'année concerto award, the pianist Benjamin Grosvenor, about setting up a new festival in lockdown, and the sense of freedom he creates in his performances, from Chopin to Rachmaninov.

And the prophetic voice of Glenn Gould: Tom is joined by the Canadian music historian Kevin Bazzana, the American-Canadian clarinetist James Campbell, and the American journalist Tim Page, to explore how Gould's decision to recede from public performance and communicate instead using contemporary recording technologies - mediums such as vinyl, radio, television and film - makes him the perfect musician for our times.

As Northern Opera Group prepare for their film adaptation of Pauline Viardot's opera, Cindarella, Tom hears from the company's artistic director, David Ward, director Sophie Gilpin and the stage director and academic Rachel M Harris, about Viardot's musical language and how to make film for, and with, the community.

And we hear from amateur music-makers across the UK - the Open Arts Choir in Belfast, Derwent Brass in Derbyshire, and Helensburgh Orchestral Society in the West of Scotland - about making connections online and how much they're missed by the communities and audiences they live for.

SAT 13:00 Inside Music (m000q397)

Violinist Maxine Kwok with all the instruments she ever wanted to play

Maxine Kwok is a violinist in the London Symphony Orchestra who adores the lush sounds of Gustav Mahler, Richard Strauss and Erich Korngold, so she's finding it hard to adjust to having to play music on a smaller scale under the current circumstances. This is a chance for her to play some of that music, alongside a piece of Gershwin that feeds her urge to tap-dance, a Chopin nocturne that she found was easier on the violin than the piano, and a flute concerto that made her want to give that instrument a try.

She also remembers the thrill of playing Verdi's La Traviata in the orchestra pit and how Star Wars led her to the LSO in the first place.

A series in which each week a musician explores a selection of music - from the inside.

Sarah Walker with guest Nick Ahad

Sarah Walker chooses three hours of attractive and uplifting music to complement your morning, and puts a musical spin on events.

Sarah's choices today range from an exhilarating and inventive piano sonata by Beethoven to a piece for orchestra by radio's
'Uncle Eric' based on a gentle Norwegian song.

Plus spirited music for a recorder quartet, Handel's most famous coronation anthem, and the evergreen Bach double violin concerto.

At 10.30am Sarah invites broadcaster and writer Nick Ahad to join her for the Sunday Morning monthly arts roundup, focusing on five cultural happenings that you can catch either online or perhaps even in person during December.

SUN 12:00 Private Passions (b0b9w3zq)

Paco Peña

Paco Peña first started playing the guitar at the age of six; it was his older brother's guitar, and since there were nine children in the family, all living in two rooms in a crowded house in Córdoba, he had a ready-made audience right from the beginning. He made his first professional appearance at the age of twelve, and toured through Spain before moving to London in the 1960s, where he found himself sharing concerts with Jimi Hendrix. Over the last fifty years, he's established a world-wide reputation as a pre-eminent master of flamenco guitar. He's a composer, too, of both a requiem and a mass in flamenco style.

In Private Passions, Paco Peña takes us back to the Spain of his childhood; this was only a few years after the end of the Spanish Civil War, and he describes the country he was born into as "fragile and tortured". He talks too about making a living as a musician on the Costa Brava, where he met his wife, and about what it was like to arrive in London in the 1960s, a time when flamenco guitar was relatively unknown.

Music choices include Mozart, Beethoven, de Falla - the Argentinian composer Eduardo Falá - and Bach, the composer Peña always listens to before going on stage to perform. He includes too the track he regards as flamenco at its quintessential best, by singer Camarón de la Isla and guitarist Paco de Lucía. And he gives away a few trade secrets about how to master passionate flamenco strumming - it involves painting your fingernails with glue.

Becoming Beethoven's Fifth

Beethoven 5: one of the most instantly recognisable and enduring works in all classical music. How did Beethoven compose it? How did he whittle down his musical choices from the endless number available to make this seemingly inevitable-sounding, gripping orchestral drama?

For insights into the essence of composition -- how you decide what comes next -- Tom Service talks to one of today's most exciting young composers. Shiva Feshareki explains how she decides one musical path over another in her own work and

Pastiche and Parody

In tribute to the actor John Sessions (11 January 1953 – 2 November 2020) another chance to hear him and Debra Stephenson displaying their vocal talents with an impression of Alan Rickman reading from Craig Brown's Lost Diaries which satirises the writing style of various literary diarists, Shaw's Pygmalion in the style of Rex Harrison, an imitation of a Greek epigram read in the voice of Helena Bonham Carter and Judi Dench giving a speech from Twelfth Night. Music includes a version of Thespis by Arthur Sullivan, Percy Grainger's Mock Morris and a piano performance by Dudley Moore as Little Miss Britten followed by Benjamin Britten's music for the wall scene in A Midsummer Night's Dream as the programme presents examples of pastiche and parody from characters in novels or operas pretending to be something, or someone, they are not to examples of out-and-out fakery.

Return of the Monster from the Id

In 1956 Louis and Bebe Barron birthed the world's first electronic film score with their unearthly soundtrack to M.G.M.'s Forbidden Planet. Ken Hollings considers their act of creation and wonders if the Monster from the Id can ever be re-awakened?

Forbidden Planet was M.G.M.'s lavish leap into science fiction. Fusing Shakespeare's Tempest, pop Freud and pulp SF. Fleeting Hollywood and the electronic avant-garde embraced to make unworldly music inspired by the new science of cybernetics. The Barrons were close associates of John Cage and at the cutting edge of new technology and music. Their "electronic tonalities", as credited on screen in deference to an anxious musicians union, were groundbreaking for both experimental music film scoring.

In the cramped space of their Greenwich village apartment the Barron's poured current through homemade circuits made up of valves, oscillators and wires. Music, sound effects and character were all arrived at by wiring, art and sweat. The roaring Monster from the Id, the bubbling sounds of Planet Altair IV and the vast caverns of glowing, ancient Krell technology. Even the Krell music, anthem to a long dead race of technologically advanced beings.

Audiences and filmmakers were startled by this great musical experiment. It remains one of the most perfect fusions of film and music, defining the way we thought the future would sound. In rare recordings Bebe and Louis Barron relate their adventures in sound. Meanwhile, somewhere near Stoke, Ken Hollings challenges music boffin Phil Taylor to a hardwired search for the secrets of Krell music and the electronic heartbeat of the Monster from the Id.

SUN 19:15 The Essay (b0b6p5yh)

Forests of the Imagination

What is it about forests that inspires our imagination? In this series of Essays for our Into the Forest season, Eleanor Rosamund Barraclough takes five woodland walks with writers and artists who find themselves moved by the sounds, textures and smells of the forest.

She's joined first by Fiona Stafford, author of 'The Long, Long Life of Trees' and expert on the Romantic poets. Fiona is fascinated by the moment in the late 18th century when Britain's great forests were swept away by the demands of the Royal Navy and the Enclosure Acts. As the dark forests with their brigands and wild beasts disappeared, novelists and visual artists were free to conjure up their own dappled glades, to create spaces of romantic imagination.

Producer: Alasdair Cross

In midsummer week, Radio 3 enters one of the most potent sources of the human imagination. 'Into the Forest' explores the enchantment, escape and magical danger of the forest in summer, with slow radio moments featuring the sounds of the forest, allowing time out from today's often frenetic world.

Thousand Cranes

Thousand Cranes is celebrated in Japan as a modern literary classic. It's author Yasunari Kawabata was the recipient of the 1968 Nobel Prize for Literature. This is a new adaptation for radio by Jude Cook.

Following the death of his parents, bachelor Kikujiri finds himself attracted to his father's last mistress, Mrs Ota. Meanwhile his father's first mistress – the manipulative Miss Kurimoto – urges him to pursue Yukiko, the 'Inamura girl', an ethereal young woman. Death, desire and envy convene around the art of the tea ceremony, where each detail is charged with intense significance.

The story takes place against the backdrop of a country in transition. In the late 1940s Japan was attempting to value and preserve tradition, while seeking to industrialise and embrace modern capitalist values following the trauma of World War Two. Part of this modernisation involved questioning the power balance of sexual relations, where men had traditionally held the upper hand. A meditation on fulfilment, isolation, submission, and passivity versus action.

Dramatised by Jude Cook from a translation by Edward G. Seidensticker.

SUN 23:00 Extraordinary Voices with Nora Fischer(m000q38r)
Blend and Decoration

In a series of three shows, Nora Fischer celebrates what the voice can do with a fabulously diverse playlist of tracks from around the world and across the centuries.

She listens to raw and passionate Bulgarian and Scandinavian singing alongside the profound warmth of Russian basses. She compares the ethereal angst of the voice of the last castrato to the effect of the longest high tenor C in classical music. And she sets the twisting ornamental lines of an 18th-century Handel opera aria next to the runs perfected by Whitney Houston and Beyoncé.

In this first episode, Nora listens to the way singers blend their voices, from an unearthly mystic unison in a piece by medieval composer Hildegard of Bingen to the multi-track digital mixing of singer-songwriter James Blake. She also listens to the way singers and composers can add twists, turns, trills and runs to a vocal line for maximum effect - whether it's in an Indian rag, an ornate aria from Italian baroque master Barbara Strozzi, or a powerful RnB ballad.

MON 00:00 Classical Fix (m000q38v)

Cuppy

Guest presenter Jules Buckley stands in for Clemmie Burton-Hill in a new series of Classical Fix, mixing bespoke classical playlists for music-loving guests. This week, Jules is joined by DJ and producer Cuppy.

Cuppy's playlist:

Jules Massenet: Navarraise (from Le Cid)
Meredith Monk: Dark/Light 2
Camille Saint-Saens: Aquarium (from Carnival of the Animals)
Samuel Akpabot: Pastoral (from Scenes from Nigeria)
Hildur Guðnadóttir: Bathroom Dance (from the Joker soundtrack)
George Frideric Handel: As With Rosy Steps The Morn (from Theadora)

Classical Fix is a podcast aimed at opening up the world of classical music to anyone who fancies giving it a go. Jules Buckley is a Grammy-winning conductor, arranger and composer who pushes the boundaries of almost all musical genres by placing them in an orchestral context, and has earned himself a reputation as a 'pioneering genre alchemist' and 'agitator of musical convention'. He leads two of the world's most versatile and in-demand orchestras - the Heritage Orchestra and the Metropole Orkest - and over the past nine years he has been responsible for some of the most groundbreaking BBC Proms, including the Ibiza Prom, 1Xtra's Grime Symphony, The Songs of Scott Walker, Jacob Collier and Friends, and tributes to Quincy Jones, Nina Simone and Charles Mingus. In 2019, Jules joined the BBC Symphony Orchestra as Creative Artist in Association.

George Benjamin (b 1960)

George Benjamin's Musical Connections

In the first of this week's programmes exploring the music of Sir George Benjamin, Donald Macleod is joined by the composer to discuss his musical influences and teachers.

Composer of the Week marks the sixtieth birthday of the celebrated British composer Sir George Benjamin. All this week Benjamin joins Donald Macleod in the studio to provide listeners with personal insights into his music and distinguished career. They discuss the composer's musical connections, his inspirations, his interest in collaboration, the compositional process, and his work as a pianist, conductor and teacher.

One of the first composers whose music George Benjamin felt a particular connection with was Beethoven. In 1975 he met Olivier Messiaen who took Benjamin under his wing, and from there his trajectory as a composer became firmly established. While studying with Messiaen in Paris, Benjamin not only took piano lessons with his teacher's second wife, Yvonne Loriod, but he also met some of the most significant composers of the 20th century: Iannis Xenakis, Karlheinz Stockhausen and Pierre Boulez. Boulez would become a significant early influence upon Benjamin and his music, through a period of study at the Institute for Music and Acoustic Research and Coordination established by Boulez.

BBC NOW play Zemlinsky and Mahler

In life, Zemlinsky and Mahler were in competition for the love of Alma Schindler, who spurned Zemlinsky to marry Mahler, but together their musical compositions form an important bridge between 19th-century romanticism and 20th-century modernism. The two pieces presented here were written only 13 years apart and highlight their differing responses to the new century, as well as the similarities present in both composers.

Zemlinsky's Six Songs to Poems by Maurice Maeterlinck frame the works of the Belgian Symbolist poet, a recent Nobel Laureate at the time they were written, with gorgeous shifting harmonies. We'll hear the work tonight in a brand new chamber arrangement by composer John Pickard, sung by Dame Sarah Connolly. Mahler's Fourth Symphony is based on the song Das himmlische Leben, whose melody Mahler revisited throughout his career, but here it suffuses the whole work. Tonight it will be performed by Rowan Pierce in Erwin Stein's chamber arrangement, where the glory of Mahler's epic writing is never lost, despite employing considerably smaller forces than the original symphony.

Presented by Nicola Heywood Thomas, and recorded in Hoddinott Hall on 19th November.

George Benjamin - Performer, Conductor and Teacher

Donald Macleod discusses with Sir George Benjamin the composer's talents as a performer, conductor and teacher.

Composer of the Week marks the sixtieth birthday of the celebrated British composer Sir George Benjamin. All this week Benjamin joins Donald Macleod in the studio to provide listeners with personal insights into his music and distinguished career. They discuss the composer's musical connections, his inspirations, his interest in collaboration, the compositional process, and his work as a pianist, conductor and teacher.

One of Sir George Benjamin's earliest musical experiences was being taught the piano and recorder at school. In his sixtieth birthday year, the composer talks to Donald Macleod about his experiences in later life as a teacher, the importance of music education, and its rewards. They also explore Benjamin's career as a conductor and pianist - including his time improvising music to accompany silent films.

George Benjamin and Inspiration

Donald Macleod in conversation with Sir George Benjamin explores the composer's sources of inspiration, both visual and literary.

Composer of the Week marks the sixtieth birthday of the celebrated British composer Sir George Benjamin. All this week Benjamin joins Donald Macleod in the studio to provide listeners with personal insights into his music and distinguished career. They discuss the composer's musical connections, his inspirations, his interest in collaboration, the compositional process, and his work as a pianist, conductor and teacher.

When composing music, Sir George Benjamin takes inspiration from various sources. The composer discusses with Donald Macleod the importance of visual inspirations in his music, and how words can have an impact upon the music he is composing. They explore the themes within some of his stage works, including homosexuality, and how he endeavours in his music to make old stories compelling for a contemporary audience.

THU 13:00 Radio 3 Lunchtime Concert (m000q3b9)
Aberystwyth MusicFest: Haydn, Hoddinott, Shostakovich Quartets

Aberystwyth MusicFest, live at St David's Hall, Cardiff. This week's series highlighting Wales's music festivals moves to the seaside town of Aberystwyth on the west coast of Wales. A casualty of the pandemic, MusicFest wasn't able to run its usual programme of concerts in the summer. The Sacconi quartet have enjoyed a long association with the festival and were due to appear in 2020. They open their recital with one of Haydn's late masterpieces. The fifth of his Opus 76 series of quartets breaks with tradition in the first movement, with a conclusion that's full of Haydn's trademark high jinks. Poignantly, the ensemble premiered Welsh composer Alun Hoddinott's Music for String Quartet on the day of the composer's death, 11th March 2008. They conclude with Shostakovich's Quartet in C minor, sometimes known as the Dresden, the city where he was when he wrote it in just three days in 1960. Belying its rather sombre mood, it's become one of the composer's most popular works.

Introduced by Nicola Heywood Thomas

Haydn: String Quartet in D, Op 76 No 5
Hoddinott: Music for String Quartet
Shostakovich: String Quartet No 8 in C minor, Op 110

Max Richter's Voices

BBC Radio 3 and BBC Sounds mark Human Rights Day 2020 with a special performance of Max Richter's new work, VOICES.

VOICES incorporates words from the 1948 Universal Declaration of Human Rights, including its powerful opening statement: "All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights." These words, spoken in languages from around the globe, are woven into a moving musical reflection on the state of the world today.

Elizabeth Alker presents this special arrangement, which was conceived during the Covid-19 lockdown and recorded with social distancing measures in the BBC's Maida Vale studios. We'll hear the Max Richter Ensemble joined by narrator Sheila Atim, soprano Grace Davidson, violinist Viktoria Mullova plus members of Tenebrae and conductor Robert Ziegler. The broadcast opens with a performance of Infra, the composer's musical response to the London 7/7 terror attacks.

This broadcast, made in partnership with the European Broadcasting Union, will be heard on more than 35 radio stations from across Europe and by global audiences in Australia, Canada and the United States.

The solitude of remote lands and medieval monks; mapping and navigating by the stars and the survival strategies of Indigenous Peoples living around the Arctic circle as the ice melts are all part of today's conversation as Eleanor Rosamund Barraclough is joined by British Museum curator Amber Lincoln, author and GP Gavin Francis and historian and New Generation Thinker Seb Falk.

Gavin Francis is the author of Island Dreams: Mapping an Obsession; Shapeshifters: On Medicine and Human Change Adventures in Human Being which won the Saltire Prize for non-fiction and was a BMA book of the year and True North: Travels in Arctic Europe.

Arctic Climate and Culture is an exhibition at the British Museum running until 21 Feb 2021 with a catalogue which details artefacts and skills such as making a bag of fish skin, sleds carved from wood and bone, soapstone kettles and decorated ivory needle cases.

Seb Falk is the author of The Light Ages - a history of Medieval Science which follows the life of medieval monk John of Westwyck - an inventor and astrologer who was exiled from St Albans to a cliff-top priory at Tynemouth. He lectures at Cambridge University and is a New Generation Thinker on the scheme run by the BBC and the Arts and Humanities Research Council to turn research into radio.

George Benjamin (b 1960)

George Benjamin and Collaboration

Donald Macleod with the composer Sir George Benjamin delves into the world of collaboration.

Composer of the Week marks the sixtieth birthday of the celebrated British composer Sir George Benjamin. All this week Benjamin joins Donald Macleod in the studio to provide listeners with personal insights into his music and distinguished career. They discuss the composer's musical connections, his inspirations, his interest in collaboration, the compositional process, and his work as a pianist, conductor and teacher.

To collaborate is to surrender part of your creativity according to Sir George Benjamin, so finding the right people to collaborate with is very important to him. Now in his sixtieth year, he has regularly collaborated with groups such as Ensemble Modern and the Mahler Chamber Orchestra, the pianist Pierre-Laurent Aimard and the librettist Martin Crimp. In the last of this week's programmes, the composer talks to Donald Macleod about why collaboration is important to him, and why in the case of opera productions, he takes a journey with the singers in the creation of their roles.

Presteigne Festival: Lili Boulanger, Peate, Rachmaninov, Finnis and Earl Wild

Presteigne Festival, live at St David's Hall, Cardiff. A fixture in the Welsh cultural calendar for approaching 40 years, due to the pandemic this year the festival wasn't able to run its usual programme of concerts in the historic and scenic setting of Presteigne in Radnorshire, Powys. A regular performer at the festival, pianist Clare Hammond presents an eclectic programme of music ranging from Lili Boulanger's gentle, yet harmonically adventurous Little Pieces to Rachmaninov and Earl Wild's homage to Gershwin. Reflecting the festival's support of new music, Clare includes two works that were written for her, Robert Peate's Pearl, which was premiered at the festival in 2013 and Edmund Finnis's Youth, which received its premiere in 2017.

Introduced by Nicola Heywood Thomas

Lili Boulanger: Trois Morceaux
Robert Peate: Pearl
Sergei Rachmaninov: Sonata No 2 (revised version, 1931)
Edmund Finnis: Youth
Earl Wild: Three Virtuoso Etudes after Gershwin Nos 4 and 6, 'Embraceable You' and 'I Got Rhythm'

Kaleidoscope Chamber Collective

Last month, as the pandemic played havoc with venues' plans up and down the country, the BBC's Maida Vale Studio 1 played host to the Halifax Philharmonic Club and one of today's most exciting chamber ensembles. The Kaleidoscope Chamber Collective was founded in 2017 but the international group has quickly gained a reputation for its fresh approach to programming and memorable performances: a "sparky, shape-shifting ensemble of starry young musicians" as one critic put it.

Their programme begins with Schubert's Notturmo, by turns rapt and dramatic, and ends with Amy Beach's big-boned piano quintet. In between come a serene Handel aria and a selection of exquisite Reynaldo Hahn songs in ear-opening new arrangements for chamber group by Kaleidoscope Chamber Collective co-founder Tom Poster.

Recorded in November and introduced by Linton Stephens.

Schubert: Notturmo in E flat, D897
Handel: Süße Stille, sanfte Quelle
Reynaldo Hahn (arr. Tom Poster): À Chloris; Quand je fus pris au pavillon; L'énamourée; La barcheta
Amy Beach: Piano Quintet

Jlin reimagines Beethoven

Verity Sharp presents an exclusive Beethoven remix from electronic musician and producer Jlin. To mark Beethoven's 250th birthday, the BBC is asking listeners to remix a new recording of his Symphony No. 5, as well as commissioning influential and acclaimed musicians to do the same. Late Junction's very own remix is by Jlin the Innovator, one of electronic music's most exciting players. A former steelworker in Indiana, Jlin's sound is grounded in forceful percussion, often credited with bringing the Chicago genre of footwork to a wider audience. An in-demand remixer who has worked with the likes of Björk and Max Richter, her latest release saw her soundtracking a dance work by choreographer Wayne McGregor.

Elsewhere, there'll be experimental disco from Cameroon's Jo Bisso from a recent compilation of his dancefloor fillers from the 70s. There's selections from the new soundtrack to filmmaker and multimedia artist Lawrence Lek's debut film AIDOL, set in a post-AI world where a fading superstar attempts to make her comeback at the 2065 virtual Olympics. Plus, the sounds of a collaboration between Bristol-based producers Eliza Lomas and Sam Francis, who improvised together using a sewing machine and Eliza's tap-dancing feet.

Produced by Katie Callin.

A Reduced Listening production for BBC Radio 3.
