SAT 01:00 Ultimate Calm (m001g3lz)
Ólafur Arnalds: Series 1

Hopeful harmonies feat. Gugu Mbatha-Raw

Join Icelandic composer and pianist Ólafur Arnalds for another hour-long musical journey that seeks to find that elusive feeling of calm.

In this week's episode, Ólafur looks for the silver linings in sound with a selection of songs inspired around the theme of hope. He reflects on how music can often provide the little glimmers of hope that you need to get through the toughest of times, and shares tracks by the likes of Alice Coltrane, Sigur Rós and JFDR.

Plus the British actress and UNHCR goodwill ambassador Gugu Mbatha-Raw transports us to her Safe Haven, the place she feels the most calm - her bath.

Building a Library

Gustav Mahler pushed the boundaries of what a symphony was at the turn of the 20th century. In his characteristically iconoclastic Symphony no.8, he paired an early Latin hymn with a setting of part of Goethe's Faust on a huge scale - it was exaggeratedly dubbed "Symphony of a Thousand" because of the number of performers Mahler calls upon. Writer Gillian Moore discusses the work, and the huge variety of approaches, with Andrew, ultimately revealing her personal recommendation to buy, download or stream

Barbara Hannigan

Sara Mohr-Pietsch meets soprano-conductor Barbara Hannigan during rehearsals for her latest concert as Associate Artist with the London Symphony Orchestra. It's a conversation which illuminates her approach to concert curation, music-making and live performance, as they discuss the previous evening's concert which placed music by Strauss and Haydn next to 20th century masterpieces by Gyorgy Ligeti, Claude Vivier and Luigi Nono.

BBC Radio London's Robert Elms talks about his lifetime passion for live music, from early experiences at pop and rock gigs to a love of jazz clubs and flamenco bars, as his new book "Live!: Why We Go Out" is published. The book was born out of Robert's reflections on the absence of live music-making during the pandemic, and that's also the inspiration behind "Mending Wall", a new work by pianist Stewart Goodyear, commissioned for Wigmore Hall's 'Voices of Today' series. Ahead of its premiere this weekend, in a recital which also includes Beethoven's "Hammerklavier" sonata, Sara heads to the London venue and sits with Stewart at the piano.

Also today, Sara explores the phenomenon of large-scale light and sound shows taking place across in cathedrals across the UK, with the sculptor and artistic director of the production company Luxmuralis, Peter Walker, and Ruth Massey, a choral singer and Southwell Minster's head of fundraising.

SAT 12:30 This Classical Life (m001qn7x)

Jess Gillam with... Sumina Studer

Jess Gillam and violinist Sumina Studer swap some of their favourite music. As well as picking up prizes for her playing in the Berliner International Music Competition and the Verbier Festival amongst others, and performing with various orchestras across the world, Sumina still finds the time to make hugely popular videos for social media where she demystifies the violin to try and bring classical music to the biggest possible audience.

She brought along to the studio the incredible voice of Millie Jackson, one of Ravel's most beautiful pieces for piano and something nostalgic from the soundtrack to the anime Kiki's Delivery Service. Meanwhile Jess chose some banjo virtuosity by Bela Fleck, a homage to Piazzolla by violinist Gidon Kremer and an elegy by Yoshimatsu.

Playlist:

JOE HISAISHI: A Town with an Ocean View
PIAZZOLLA: Soledad [Gidon Kremer (violin)]
RAVEL: Piano Concerto in G – 2nd mvt Adagio [Martha Argerich (piano), Berlin Philharmonic, Claudio Abbado (conductor)]
MILLIE JACKSON: If You're Not Back in Love by Monday
BELA FLECK/EDGAR MEYER: The B Tune [Béla Fleck (banjo), Zakir Hussain (table), Edgar Meyer (double bass)]
TAKASHI YOSHIMATSU: And Birds are Still.... Op.72 [Manchester Camerata, Sachio Fujioka (conductor)]
COPLAND: Symphony No. 3 – 4th mvt [San Francisco Symphony, Michael Tilson Thomas (conductor)]

SAT 13:00 Inside Music (m001qn7z)

Pianist Kathryn Stott serves up double espressos and drumming soldiers

Pianist Kathryn Stott explores music drawn from corners of the world as remote as the pristine wilderness of Tasmania and the vast plains of Mongolia. There's also a piece that evokes the sounds of the night in Madrid with soldiers' drums and tolling bells, and another that reminds Kathryn of the theme tunes for

Saturday night TV programmes.

Several of her choices explore music with opposing characters, including a piece by Ernest Chausson whose calmness has a sad twist to it, a piece by Franz Schubert that appears to be in a major key but keeps returning to the darker minor, and Billie Holiday singing a song whose sad lyrics are at odds with its upbeat character.

Plus, a piece written by a double bass player to push the limits of his technique.

A series in which each week a musician explores a selection of music - from the inside.

SAT 15:00 Sound of Cinema (m001qn81)

Family Films

Of all the genre titles the 'family film' is perhaps the trickiest to define. Its intention, clearly, is to entertain and appeal to the whole family - togetherness. But what are the specific ingredients that make it so? Nevertheless, cinema goes seem to have a good sense of what an advertised family film might have to offer.

Matthew Sweet looks back at this category of film, which seemed to spring into existence in America around the 1930s, and he foregrounds the music of some of the best and most defining examples.

The programme includes music from Home Alone, Snow White and the Seven Dwarves, Gulliver's Travels, Honey I Shrank The Kids, The Seventh Voyage of Sinbad, Chitty Chitty Bang Bang, ET - The Extra Terrestrial, Kiki's Delivery Service, Paddington 2 and the Classical Score of the Week - the Harry Gregson-Williams and John Powell score for Shrek.

John Adams's Nixon in China

John Adams's Nixon in China from the Opéra Bastille in Paris, starring Thomas Hampson and Renée Fleming as Richard and Pat Nixon, conducted by Gustavo Dudamel.

Inspired by US President Richard Nixon's visit to the People's Republic of China in 1972, John Adams's opera with concept by Peter Sellars and libretto by Alice Goodman is less a political drama than an exploration of the different world-views of two peoples, Chinese and American.

This production contains some very strong language that some listeners may find offensive.

Presented by Kate Molleson in conversation with Jonathan Cross.

SAT 22:00 New Music Show (m001qn89)

Concert from Cardigan with Caoimhin O Raghallaigh, Jenn

Kirby, Rhodri Davies and GBSR Duo

Kate Molleson hosts a special New Music Show concert, recorded at Theatr Mwlân in Cardigan last weekend. Showcasing leading artists from Wales and across the sea in Ireland, there are sets by Caoimhin O Raghallaigh, playing an extraordinary ten-stringed fiddle (called a hardanger d'amore) to make haunting folk-inspired music with live electronic treatments; Jenn Kirby performing her own solo songs with software, sensors and re-purposed controllers, so that her physical movements mould and direct the live electronic sounds; harpist Rhodri Davies plays music by Yasunao Tone, Carole Finer and himself; and the GBSR Duo (George Barton on percussion and Siwan Rhys, piano), play music by Tim Parkinson and Barbara Monk Feldman.

Miniature movements

Corey Mwamba presents the best in new improvised music.

Turkish duo Fulya Uçanok and Zeynep Ayşe Hatipoğlu create a series of miniature pieces offering bodily, in-the-moment responses that generate maximal sounds full of space and scurrying movement. Elsewhere, Cécile Broché, Russ Lossing and Satoshi Takeishi use subtle turns of sound to pull us into the bustle of Parisian streets. Through short vignettes, they reenact sunsets, the cavernous echoes of subways and, somehow, even the warm glow of ovens in a bakery.

Plus, Abe Mamet leads a luminous big band who had spent a month making music together in Italy, featuring Rahul Carlberg, Adriana Camacho, Luisa Muhr, Emily Shapiro, fall raye, Rachel Musson, Daniel Carter and Gary Jones III. And, taking self-made improvisations as a base, sound artist Seventh Shadow of the Sun builds otherworldly structures infused with the kinetic force of tiny electron particles.

Peter Frankopan

Peter Frankopan is a historian who likes to take on big ideas, sweeping across many centuries and national boundaries.

In his acclaimed book The Silk Roads: A New History of the World, published in 2015, he argued that the Persian empire gave rise to the West and he explored the importance of the trading routes that linked Arabia and Asia to Europe, and how they spread ideas, culture and religion. The book was a bestseller in the UK, China and India and even inspired a musical collaboration between singer Katie Melua and students at Oxford, where Peter is professor of global history. His follow-up, The New Silk Roads: the Future and Present of the World investigated how economic power is shifting eastwards.

More recently Peter has turned his attention to climate change. In The Earth Transformed he examined how it has dramatically shaped the development - and the demise - of civilisations across time.

Peter's musical choices include works by Tchaikovsky, Mozart and Edward Naylor.

Chouchane Siranossian - Bach and beyond

From Wigmore Hall: leading Baroque violinist Chouchane Siranossian plays music by Bach and some of his contemporaries.

Chouchane Siranossian is joined by the harpsichordist Leonardo Garcia Alarcón for a typically intriguing programme which ranges across the baroque. With some of Bach's more famous violin works at its core, we also hear from some of the German and Italian composers who influenced him and from Gregory of Narek, a 10th century Armenian mystic and poet.

Presented by Hannah French.

J.S. Bach: Violin Sonata in G, BWV1021
Carlo Farina: Sonata quinta detta 'La Farina'
J.S. Bach: Adagio from Violin Sonata in C minor, BWV1024
J.S. Bach: Fugue in G minor, BWV1026
Johann Gottfried Walther: Passacaglia from Sonata No. 7
Krikor Naregatsi (c.950-1003): Improvisation on Havun Havun
Pietro Antonio Locatelli: Sonata in D minor, Op. 6 No. 12
Andreas Anton Schmelzer: Violin Sonata 'Victori der Christen'

Chouchane Siranossian (violin)
Leonardo Garcia Alarcón (harpsichord)
Balázs Máté (cello)

A twice-over recent winner of the International Classical Music Awards for her Tartini concertos disc (2021), and the Mendelssohn E minor concerto (2019), the violinist is a Baroque specialist who also explores a wider repertoire. Her mastery of the instrument, nourished by her musical research and her work with some of today's leading Baroque and modern instrument orchestras, conductors and composers has made her a highly sought-after musician of marked individuality. When Chouchane is not on stage or researching, she devotes herself to her passion for mountaineering and ski touring.

The Elements - Water

Hannah French concludes her series of four programmes associated with the ancient Greek concept of the four elements – symbolic forces that inspired Renaissance and Baroque composers with the essences of creation out of chaos: air, earth, fire, and today, water.

Today's programme focuses on H2O in its many guises, with music by Gibbons, Bach, Handel, Vivaldi, Rameau and Rebel.

SUN 17:00 The Listening Service (m000hvnd)
 Talking in music

Tom Service explores talking in music - from Gilbert and Sullivan's patter songs to high-art 'sprechgesang' by Schoenberg, from Mozart's recitative to the rap of present-day LA. Anyway, who's to say what is talking and what is singing? Archive recordings of WB Yeats reveal him intoning his poetry melodically, while Ken Nordine devised what he called 'Word Jazz'.

SUN 17:30 Words and Music (m001pg14)
 Made in Yorkshire

Gemma Whelan (Game of Thrones/Gentleman Jack) and Paul Copley (Downton Abbey/Last Tango in Halifax) take us on a literary journey through their native Yorkshire starting in the west of the county in the depths of the Calder Valley with poets Ted Hughes and Zaffar Kunial, and the treacherous Cragg Vale Coiners courtesy of novelist Ben Myers. Over the moors we encounter the famous Bronte sisters before heading south to Marsden for some cricket with poet laureate Simon Armitage. In Halifax we meet 19th-century diarist Anne Lister – perhaps better known as Gentleman Jack - before arriving in 1970s Leeds a time when, as novelist Kate Atkinson puts it, Yorkshire was 'awash with serial killers'. Heading east we get to Hull with 17th century metaphysical poet Andrew Marvell, and Winifred Holtby who used her mother's experience as an alderwoman in the East Riding of Yorkshire as the basis of her 1935 novel South Riding. Further up the coast we stop at the oriental themed Peasholm Park in Scarborough with Doncaster poet Sarah Wimbush, and the Victorian seaside town Saltburn-by-the-Sea with Carmen Marcus, daughter of a Yorkshire fisherman. Back inland and further north, yet James Herriot delivers a calf in Thirsk, and Yorkshire dialect campaigner Dorothy Una Ratcliffe describes April in Wensleydale, despite really being from Surrey. With music by Yorkshire composers including Eric Fenby, John Barry, Hannah Peel, and John Hebden, and the bells of Hull Minster reimaged by electronic duo Nightports.

Producer: Ruth Thomson

Readings:

Benjamin Myers – The Gallows Pole
 Emily Bronte – The Night Is Darkening Round Me
 Ted Hughes – The Thought Fox
 Anne Bronte – Shirley
 Zaffar Kunial – Bronte Taxis

And the Crowd Roars

'Where's your famous atmosphere?!

At the heart of any football match is the crowd. Without it, the beautiful game is meaningless. The deadly silence of Covid reminded everyone of the crowd's power and place. Across a tumultuous last season at Arsenal, Mark Burman recorded from his beloved North Bank & travelled to hear the roar of Borussia Dortmund's legendary Yellow Wall. Former Ultra & artist Marcin Dudek summons the sonic demons of his days fighting and shouting in the concrete bowl of Cracovia in Poland. With the voices of Wayne Busbridge, Marcin Dudek, David Goldblatt, Uli Hesse, Tom Jones, Chrissie Langton, Allan Mabert, Clive Palmer & 60,000 Gooners. Recorded in ambisonic & binaural so best heard with your headphones on. Producer: Mark Burman

SUN 19:15 Sunday Feature (m001qn7b)

Edward Carpenter Brings German Sexology to Sheffield

BBC New Generation Thinker Seán Williams explores the writing life of Edward Carpenter, Sheffield-based gay rights writer and campaigner. Carpenter wrote an important lecture on the cultural history of homosexuality - but it remained unpublished, because it was due to be given on the eve of the First World War. Seán Williams reveals the contents of this lecture, which was - rather surprisingly - written in German - the unofficial language of homosexuality at the time.

Contributors: Writer and historian Sally Goldsmith; Jana Funke, Associate Professor of English and Sexuality Studies at the University of Exeter.

Producer: Eliane Glaser

Reader: Michael Bertenshaw

Music: 'Meditation' by Edward Carpenter, performed by Alan Rowlands.

Come Closer Now

Katie Hims's love letter to radio drama as the form celebrates its centenary.

Annie is writing a radio play about a hundred years of radio plays, and it's also, curiously, the story of her own family. As she writes she unearths the myths, half-truths and lies that have been woven into her family's fabric for generations. Stories that are written to cope with uncomfortable facts. Stories that warp and twist reality. Stories shown in the studio walls. Stories that crackle with electricity. Stories that move across space and time, and end up right in your ear, right in your head. Stories a bit like this one.

From gathering around the wireless to listening on-demand on headphones, the listener, and the medium, has transformed over the century. And across this sweep of time, radio drama has remained an innovative, yet deeply intimate art form, with infinite possibilities. It's often called the most visual medium there is.

A BBC Audio Production for BBC Radio 4

Katie Hims wrote her first play for radio in 1996, and has been writing extensively in the genre ever since, to great acclaim. Katie's play Waterloo Station was the winner of Best Radio Drama at the 2023 Writers Guild Awards. Her other original audio work includes Black Eyed Girls (winner of the BBC Audio Drama Award for Best Original Drama), Lost Property (winner of the BBC Audio Drama Award for Best Original Drama), The Gunshot Wedding (winner of The Writer's Guild Best Original Radio Drama). Katie was lead writer on BBC's Home Front and has written multiple leading adaptations for BBC Radio 4: Thomas Hardy's Tess of the D'Urbervilles, George Eliot's Middlemarch, Edna O'Brien's The Country Girls and The Martin Beck Killings by Maj Sjowall and Per Wahloo.

In theatre, Katie is currently on attachment at the National Theatre. Her recent stage work includes a contemporary retelling of Kafka's The Trial which ran at The Unicorn Theatre in 2023 and received 4 and 5 star reviews.

The Legend of the Grigna

With its peak at 2410 metres in altitude, the North Grigna is an imposing quasi-mythical character in the local culture of the Lombardy region. Those who get to its top can take in a 360-degree view over the Alps, Lake Como and the plains around Milan. Celebrated by Leonardo da Vinci in his Codex Atlanticus for its rocky ridges, the mountain is also the protagonist in an Italian Alpine folk song entitled The Legend of the Grigna. The lyrics speak of a beautiful female warrior who is turned into a dangerous mountain, divine punishment for her having asked a sentry to fire an arrow at her suitor.

This song - sung in Italian by a local choir - frames our ascent on foot to the top of the North Grigna. As the singers recount the story of the warrior, warning us of the dangers of the hike, we pass through woodlands of beech and larch trees, and encounter small pastures where sheep and donkeys graze. There are rain showers, steep slopes, scree and snowy paths to battle and rare encounters with other intrepid Alpinists. The target is the Rifugio Brioschi, a wooden hut at the peak of the mountain where fellow hikers raise a glass and share tales from the climb before turning in for the night.

With special thanks to the Coro Grigna (<http://www.corogrigna.it>) for allowing us to attend their weekly rehearsal and record La Leggenda della Grigna, and to fellow hikers Hannah Mackaness, Monica Malberti and Valentina Rossini.

MON 12:00 Composer of the Week (m001qn8m)
Anniversary Special: A Welsh Quintet

Choral music from Wales

Donald Macleod celebrates 80 years of "Composer of the Week" with a concert of music by Grace Williams and Hilary Tann, curated by Welsh music historian Rhian Davies, and performed by the BBC Singers in Hoddinott Hall in Cardiff Bay. Donald, together with Welsh music specialist Geraint Lewis and conductor and broadcaster Gwawr Owen, considers the part these two composers play in the history of Wales's vibrant choral tradition.

Composer of the Week has been produced in Cardiff since 1999, so it's fitting that Donald is celebrating Welsh composers in this anniversary series. Across the week, he follows the stories of Grace Williams, Hilary Tann, Morfydd Owen, Dilys Elwyn-Edwards and Rhian Samuel. This quintet of composers were all born in Wales, and much of their music finds inspiration in their Welsh roots. Collectively, their stories will take us from the 1890s to the present day.

For the first time in "Composer of the Week's" long history, today's first episode of the series was recorded live and in front of an audience. During the programme the BBC Singers showcase music by two composers Grace Williams and Hilary Tann, through their choral music. Music includes Williams' arrangements of Welsh folk songs, and her masterly setting of Ave Maris Stella and we also hear Hilary Tann's settings of Welsh poets RS Thomas and Menna Elfyn.

Kirill Petrenko conducts the Berlin Philharmonic's Season Opening Concert

To open their new season the dream team of Kirill Petrenko and the Berlin Philharmonic perform two late-Romantic works by Max Reger and Richard Strauss.

Reger's music has long-been a concert hall rarity but for the occasional outing for his Variations on a Theme by Mozart, an attractive Brahmsian pastiche from 1914. Reger imagined his music as a bulwark against what he called the 'unnatural quirkiness and eccentricity' of some of his contemporaries. It was the sort of criticism so often levelled at Richard Strauss, whose symphonic poem Ein Heldenleben – A Hero's Life – offended with its vain and overweening autobiographical narrative. But now it's Strauss's music which fills concert halls and we can enjoy Ein Heldenleben on its own terms, from the irresistible swagger and momentum of its opening, through to its poignant closing bars, all in delivered in Strauss's trademark dazzling orchestration.

Recorded last month at the Philharmonie, Berlin, and introduced by Fiona Talkington.

The Little Secrets of Great Works

You've Got Mail

It's in the minutiae of masterpieces that we feel their thrill and power.

In this series of The Essay, five leading cultural voices choose a great work of art and talk about a small, underappreciated aspect of the piece that carries great meaning for them.

For this edition, the children's novelist and screenwriter Elle McNicoll (A Kind of Spark, Like a Charm) describes the inspiration she has taken from a single line of dialogue in Nora Ephron's much loved romantic comedy 'You've Got Mail', starring Meg Ryan and Tom Hanks. Elle describes growing up with Ephron's film collection in the house and gaining a love of New York from 'Nora'. She also remembers how she connected to Ryan's character Kathleen - as a bookseller and advocate for children's literature - through one line spoken in a book store scene.

TUE 12:00 Composer of the Week (m001qmx2)
Anniversary Special: A Welsh Quintet

Dilys Elwyn-Edwards and Morfydd Owen

Donald Macleod's celebration to mark 80th anniversary of the series continues with stories about two more Welsh composers, Morfydd Owen and Dilys Elwyn-Edwards.

Composer of the Week has been produced in Cardiff since 1999, so it's fitting that Donald is celebrating Welsh composers in this anniversary series. Following on from a live concert given in the BBC's Hoddinott Hall in Cardiff Bay, with the BBC Singers, Donald continues the story of Welsh music with programmes featuring music by Grace Williams, Hilary Tann, Morfydd Owen, Dilys Elwyn-Edwards and Rhian Samuel. This quintet of composers were all born in Wales, and much of their music finds inspiration in their Welsh roots. Collectively, their stories will take us from the 1890s to the present day.

Today Donald's guest is Welsh music specialist Geraint Lewis. Together they chart the extraordinary life of a composer with a small but distinguished output, Dilys Elwyn-Edwards and one of Wales's most promising young talents, Morfydd Owen, who died in tragic circumstances at the age of just 26 in 1918, the year Dilys Elwyn-Edwards was born.

TUE 13:00 Radio 3 Lunchtime Concert (m001qmx5)
Wales and West: Clara Schumann and Brahms

Sarah Walker presents a selection of highlights from the 2022 Two Moors Festival and the 2023 Cowbridge Music Festival. Viola player Rosalind Ventris, who is also Artistic Director of the Cowbridge Music Festival, joins pianist Llŷr Williams to perform the lyrical Three Romances, Opus 22, which Clara Schumann composed in 1853. This is followed by a work written forty years later, the popular Sonata No 1 in F minor, Opus 120 No 1 by Brahms, which is full of passion and yearning. The concert ends with music recorded at the Two Moors Festival, and the Orsino Ensemble performing a four movement Quintet by Pavel Haas. Haas wrote this work at the age of thirty, in 1929, but his life was to be cut short, when he was murdered in a concentration camp.

TUE 22:00 Free Thinking (m001qmxs)
Betty Miller and Marghanita Laski

Rejected by her usual publisher, Farewell Leicester Square is a novel by Betty Miller, written in 1935, exploring antisemitism, Jewishness and "marrying out". Marghanita Laski may now be best known for her contributions to broadcasting on programmes like The Brains Trust but was also a published author of many stories including The Victorian Chaise-Longue and Little Boy Lost. Both writers have now been republished by Persephone Books. Matthew Sweet's guests are the novelist Howard Jacobson, the academic Lisa Mullen and the author Lara Feigel who explore the writers lives and why they both abandoned writing fiction to focus on literary biographies. At the end of the discussion Howard Jacobson tells listeners "I very rarely hear people describing a novel that makes me want to read it - in fact if there is any listener out there who now does not want to read Marghanita Laski they are heartless."

Producer: Fiona McLean

Betty Miller published 7 novels including Farewell Leicester Square and On the Side of the Angels (1945) and a biography of Robert Browning (1952). Marghanita Laski's books include To Bed with Grand Music (1946), Tory Heaven (1948), Little Boy Lost (1949), The Village (1952) and The Victorian Chaise-longue (1953), biographies of Jane Austen and George Eliot. She was also a prolific contributor to the Oxford English Dictionary (OED).

Lara Feigel's books include The Bitter Taste of Victory: In the Ruins of the Reich; The Love Charm of Bombs: Restless Lives in the Second World War and most recently Look! We Have Come Through! Living with DH Lawrence. She is a Professor of English at Kings College London
Lisa Mullen's books include Mid-Century Gothic: The Uncanny Objects of Modernity in British Literature and Culture after the Second World War. She is Bye Fellow at Queens' College, Cambridge and a BBC/AHRC New Generation Thinker
Howard Jacobson is the author of books including The Finkler Question, The Mighty Walzer, Live a Little and most recently a non-fiction book Mother's Boy: A Writer's Beginnings

You can find a series of discussions about Poetry, Prose and Drama on the Free Thinking website including previous discussions featuring Howard Jacobson, Lara Feigel and Lisa Mullen.

TUE 22:45 The Essay (m001qmxs)
The Little Secrets of Great Works

Sibelius's Fifth Symphony

It's in the minutiae of masterpieces that we feel their thrill and power.

In this series of The Essay, five leading cultural voices choose a great work of art and talk about a small, underappreciated aspect of the piece that carries great meaning for them.

In this edition, Stephen Bush, Associate Editor of the Financial Times, considers the Third Movement of Jean Sibelius's Symphony No 5 and what it means to him.

Anniversary Special: A Welsh Quintet

Grace Williams

Composer of the Week's 80th anniversary celebrations continue as Donald Macleod delves in to the largely unknown riches of Grace Williams's orchestral music with Rhiannon Mathias.

Composer of the Week has been produced in Cardiff since 1999, so it's fitting that Donald is celebrating Welsh composers in this anniversary series. Following on from a live concert given in the BBC's Hoddinott Hall in Cardiff Bay, with the BBC Singers, Donald continues the story of Welsh music with programmes featuring music by Grace Williams, Hilary Tann, Morfydd Owen, Dilys Elwyn-Edwards and Rhian Samuel. This quintet of composers were all born in Wales, and much of their music finds inspiration in their Welsh roots. Collectively, their stories will take us from the 1890s to the present day.

Today Donald's guest is Rhiannon Mathias, a musician and the biographer of Welsh composer Grace Williams. Their survey takes in Williams's much loved Fantasia on eight Welsh Nursery Tunes, but they also consider Williams as a symphonist, and Donald discovers one of Williams' earliest orchestral compositions which has been recorded by the BBC National Orchestra of Wales as part of their ongoing project to record Williams' symphonic output.

Wales and West: Dvořák and Smetana

Sarah Walker presents a selection of highlights from the 2022 Two Moors Festival and the 2023 Cowbridge Music Festival. Violinist Tamsin Waley-Cohen, who is also the Artistic Director of the Two Moors Festival, teams up with the Orsino Ensemble to present the popular and beautifully lyrical Romance Opus 11 by Dvořák. The Orsino Ensemble continue with music by a composer celebrated for his works for wind instruments. Anton Reicha was a teacher of Berlioz and Liszt, and his Andante in D minor, and a further twenty-five quintets, are a mainstay of the woodwind repertoire. The concert concludes with a performance from the Cowbridge Music Festival. Trio Gaspard perform Smetana's Piano Trio in G minor, Opus 15, which is full of heartfelt loss and emotion as the composer wrote it at a time when he struggled with the recent death of one of his daughters.

The Ulster Orchestra's Opening Season Concert

John Toal introduces the opening concert of the Ulster Orchestra's 2023-24 Season, from the Ulster Hall in Belfast. Magicians, princes, pirates and Greek gods all find a home in the programme conducted by the Orchestra's Chief Conductor, Daniele Rustioni.

The concert begins with The Sorcerer's Apprentice by Dukas, composed in 1897 and made famous by Mickey Mouse and Disney's Fantasia. The symphonic poem transforms a ballad by Goethe into a musical tale of magic and mischief, with each instrument playing a distinct role. You can hear the marching brooms in the bassoon, the magic spells brought to life by the trumpets and flowing water in the strings.

The celebrated German cellist, Alban Gerhardt, joins the Orchestra for a performance of Prokofiev's Sinfonia Concertante. The work was written near the end of his life and was prompted by Mstislav Rostropovich, whose playing reawakened Prokofiev's interest in the instrument. It is a re-working of an earlier concerto.

During the interval John Toal will be joined by Daniele Rustioni as he begins his final season as the Ulster Orchestra's Chief Conductor.

More music from popular culture follows the interval, with the most famous part of Borodin's 4-act opera Prince Igor, the Polovtsian Dances. Most notably they appear in the 1953 musical Kismet.

And the concert concludes with Ravel's second concert suite from Daphnis et Chloé - a work which he went to great lengths to get just right. It begins with music depicting the luminous sounds of dawn (Lever du Jour), telling the story of the two adolescent lovers as they reunite after an enforced separation. A Pantomime also features, with the pair dancing in honour of the God Pan and the Suite ends with an increasingly frenzied bacchanale: 'Danse générale'.

Childbirth and parenthood: Contains Strong Language

'Dearest Albert hardly left me at all, & was the greatest support & comfort' - Queen Victoria commending her husband, who was present at the birth of their first child. In Confinement: The Hidden History of Maternal Bodies in Nineteenth-Century Britain, Dr Jessica Cox writes about the perils of childbirth in the past. She's joined by Dr Laura Sellers, programmes curator at the medical history museum in Leeds The Thackray. We also hear from the dramatist Testament, whose play Daughter was nominated for the Prix Europa and Hannah Silva, whose book My Child The Algorithm is a memoir of queer parenting which started out as a radio play written using text generated by a machine-learning algorithm. The discussion is hosted by New Generation Thinker and historian at the University of Leeds John Gallagher in a recording at The Howard Assembly Room in Leeds as part of the BBC Contains Strong Language Festival.

Producer based in Salford: Nick Holmes

You can find a whole series of BBC programmes recorded at the 2023 Contains Strong Language Festival on the festival website and available on BBC Sounds. They include Radio 3's new writing programme The Verb, a Drama on 3, the music magazine programme Music Matters, Radio 4's discussion programme Start the Week and a special episode of Radio 3's The Early Music Show.

The Little Secrets of Great Works

The Tiger Who Came to Tea

It's in the minutiae of masterpieces that we feel their thrill and power.

In this series of The Essay, five leading cultural voices choose a great work of art and talk about a small, underappreciated aspect of the piece that carries great meaning for them.

Spectator Literary Editor Sam Leith explores his fascination with a background figure in Judith Kerr's classic picture book 'The Tiger Who Came to Tea'.

Berlioz: Symphonie fantastique

Charles Curtis (cello)

Ilan Volkov (conductor)
BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra

Bold sounds, and musical storytelling, characterise this concert from Glasgow: brought to life with passionate precision by the BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra's long-time collaborator, Ilan Volkov. Cassandra Miller's composition 'Duet for Cello and Orchestra' is a 30-minute homage to the Sicilian opera composer Vincenzo Bellini and has been recognised as one of the most significant and original works of the 21st century. And in this concert it is paired with an equitably groundbreaking one from the 19th: Berlioz's far-sighted piece of orchestral narrative-making, the Symphonie fantastique.

Hobbes and New Leviathans

"Solitary, poor, nasty, brutish and short" is the way Thomas Hobbes described the life of man in a state of nature in his 1651 book The Leviathan. The seventeenth century philosopher reasoned that what men needed was a "common power to keep them in awe". It was a conclusion that has not endeared him to the enlightenment and liberal thinkers of the centuries that followed. The philosopher John Gray thinks that Hobbes' bleak vision of the human condition might help us understand the recent disappointments of progressive politics and the failures of liberal democracies. Anne McElvoy talks to him about this theory and to journalist and author of Politics: A Survivors Guide, Rafael Behr and Teresa Bejan, Professor of Political Theory at the University of Oxford.

Producer: Ruth Watts

You can find other episodes exploring ideas about politics and history in the Free Thinking archives and available to download as Arts & Ideas podcasts. They include - Utopianism in Politics a discussion about Thomas More's ideas with guests including Kwasi Kwarteng and Gisela Stuart

We also hear from a younger generation of Welsh composers, with music by Sarah Lianne Lewis and Eloise Gynn. Composer of the Week has been produced in Cardiff since 1999, so it's fitting that Donald is celebrating Welsh composers in this anniversary series. Following on from a live concert given in the BBC's Hoddinott Hall in Cardiff Bay, with the BBC Singers, Donald continues the story of Welsh music with programmes featuring music by Grace Williams, Hilary Tann, Morfydd Owen, Dilys Elwyn-Edwards and Rhian Samuel. This quintet of composers were all born in Wales, and much of their music finds inspiration in their Welsh roots. Collectively, their stories will take us from the 1890s to the present day. Donald Macleod and conductor and pianist David Wordsworth, who was Hilary Tann's publisher for many years, discuss the diverse elements of Tann's musical inspiration. Tann was born in Ferndale in the Welsh valleys in 1947, and this selection of music, curated by Welsh music historian Rhian Davies, reflects Tann's deep connection with the land of her birth, its landscape and its poetry, her fascination and deep knowledge of Japan and its culture, and her appreciation of her adopted home in America, where she lived for many years in the foothills of the Adirondack mountains on the east coast. Hilary Tann: From the Song of Amergin (excerpt) Matthew Featherstone, flute Rosalind Ventris, viola Anneke Hoddnett, harp Hilary Tann: Nothing Forgotten I: Andante maestoso Sini Virtanen, violin Andrew Barnhart, cello Eunmi Ko, pianist Sarah Lianne Lewis: All my ships are white BBC Singers Ellie Slorach, conductor Libby Burgess, piano Eloise Gynn: Kingfisher BBC Singers Ellie Slorach, conductor Libby Burgess, piano Hilary Tann: Llef for flute and cello (excerpt) Christiane Meininger, flute Françoise Groben, cello Hilary Tann: Shakkei II: Leggiero Virginia Shaw, oboe The North South Chamber Orchestra Max Lifchitz, conductor Hilary Tann: Water's Edge II: From the Riverbed The North South Chamber Orchestra Max Lifchitz, conductor Hilary Tann: Seven poems of stillness I: The air a staircase for silence (Kneeling) Guy Johnson, cello RS Thomas, narration Hilary Tann: In the First, Spinning Place Concerto for alto saxophone and wind orchestra I: Down the rivers of the windfall light II: The pebbles of the holy streams iii: IN the first spinning place Debra Richtmeyer, saxophone Slovak Radio Symphony Orchestra Kirk Trevor, conductor Producer: Johannah Smith FRI 13:00 Radio 3 Lunchtime Concert (m001qn0y) Wales and West: Dvořák and Janáček Sarah Walker presents a selection of highlights from the 2022 Two Moors Festival and the 2023 Cowbridge Music Festival. This final concert in the series begins with the famed Dumky Piano Trio by Dvořák, performed by Trio Gaspard at Holy Cross Parish Church in Cowbridge. This mighty six movement work, which carries its listeners between melancholic sections and faster movements, has become one of Dvořák's most popular works. The concert ends with a return to Dulverton on Exmoor, and a performance given by the Orsino Ensemble of Janáček's Mládi, or 'Youth'. In this four movement work, the seventy-year-old composer reminisces about his boyhood. Dvořák: Piano Trio No 4 in E minor, Op 90 (Dumky) Trio Gaspard Janáček: Mládi Orsino Ensemble	Produced by Luke Whitlock FRI 14:00 Afternoon Concert (m001qn12) Shostakovich in Jerusalem Penny Gore rounds off another week of afternoons with performances from around Europe and BBC ensembles. Today, cellist Mischa Maisky joins the Jerusalem Symphony Orchestra for the first of the composer's two cello concertos, the Bavarian Radio Symphony Orchestra plays Schubert's Symphony No.3, and the Officium Ensemble sing more music by Portuguese Renaissance composers at the Granada International Festival. The Little Secrets of Great Works

Frida Kahlo's Broken Column

In this series of The Essay, five leading cultural voices choose a great work of art and talk about a small, under-appreciated aspect of the piece that carries great meaning for them.

Art historian and author of The Story of Art Without Men, Katy Hessel draws our attention to the spine as a symbol of feminine strength and survival in Frida Kahlo's Broken Column. No matter how ambitious and brave she was in her painting, life was a constant battle: in love, in her physicality, and her struggle to be taken seriously as a woman and as an artist. Kahlo was stunted by her life – from her operations to her heartbreak, her miscarriage to her constant fight to be heard – Broken Column is a message to us that justice will come; life will be reborn.

Casseptember: Shelf Life II, Tape Junction

Jennifer Lucy Allan hosts the final episode in our month-long celebration of cassette culture, marking the 60th anniversary since its invention.

Following a previous visit to Jen's living room to raid her vinyl shelves, we return to dig through her extensive cassette collection. There are electroacoustic experiments from Indonesia from the likes of Minus Equals Plus as well as blues from Bin Idris, whose 2013 tape came packed in a guitar string sleeve with a unique guitar string inside. There'll be lo-fi pop from Bobby Would from a tape encased in a fishnet, and keening bagpipes from Glasgow musician and inventor Donald WG Lindsay. Plus, some unmarked cassette mysteries, gathered over the years, that we aim to unravel...

Elsewhere, more cassette memories from special guests and listeners, including Mabu Li of the label Dusty Ballz on the 'cut-out generation' in 1990s China, and composer Maxwell Sterling's reminiscences on his early tape experiences listening to Kraftwerk in the bath.
