SAT 13:00 Key Changes: Radio 3's Essential History of Classical Music (m002yy1j) 1741: Messiah at Sea 1741, Irish Sea. On a rough crossing from Holyhead to Dublin, George Frideric Handel carries the manuscript of a masterpiece. London has turned away from his Italian operas, and he is looking for a different kind of success - with a new oratorio. In Dublin, Messiah is performed for the first time, drawing on English text, choral power and a more direct style of storytelling. Now, Handel must adapt to changing tastes and he creates a work that moves beyond the theatre into churches, concert halls and public life. From its charitable beginnings to its enduring place in choral culture, Messiah becomes one of the most widely performed works in classical music. Gillian Moore is joined by a roster of distinguished historians for this major new BBC Radio 3 series, charting a course through 1000 years of classical music history. For Episodes 9 to 16, Gillian welcomes Suzannah Lipscomb to help her explore the fascinating stories and rich sound worlds of the Late Renaissance and Baroque. Two hours of classical sparkle

This week, Sarah's playlist journeys along the Mississippi River with Delius, dances a dumka with Dvořák, and sparks joy in the finale of Mozart's Clarinet Concerto.

Today's Choral Reflection is Elgar's heartfelt Deep in My Soul, a haunting setting of poetry by Lord Byron, and Sunday Morning also celebrates the sounds of nature with a Sunday Sequence inspired by birdsong. Plus, a host of musical discoveries that have caught Sarah's ear this week, including a new release that captures a different side of some well-loved composers...

SUN 13:30 Music Map (m002xyyw)

Weber's Invitation to the Dance

Sara Mohr-Pietsch explores Berlioz's orchestral arrangement of "Invitation to the Dance," originally composed by Weber.

This piece tells the story of two dancers: the invitation is made, accepted and at the end of their dance, they go their separate ways.

Tune in for music that celebrates the joy of dancing, including waltzes from Chopin and Coleridge-Taylor, and a wildly popular arrangement from the latest series of Bridgerton. We'll also shine a spotlight on the cello, with works from Sally Beamish and JS Bach, along with music with a surprising ending, featuring beloved symphonies from Haydn and Vaughan Williams.

SUN 15:00 Sofi Jeannin - Singing Together (m001wywb)

Telling Stories and Forming Identities

Nothing expresses the human spirit better than the human voice and the collective singing experience magnifies this a thousand times. No-one knows this better than Sofi Jeannin, Chief Conductor of BBC Singers and the famous children's choir the Maitrise de Radio France. Over her career she has worked with singers across all ages and genres and has an unparalleled knowledge of music for choruses, choirs and community singing.

In this first episode Sofi explores singing together as a vehicle for storytelling - the music which entertains us as well as telling our own human story. Her exploration ranges from Verdi's famous Va Pensiero chorus which was sung spontaneously as the composer's cortege passed through the streets of Italy to the folk music of Corsican farmers and the shanties of Cornish fishermen. She revisits Haydn's colourful story-telling in his Oratorios and sheds light on Corpus Christi, with Cat and Mouse; a whimsical showpiece by Peter Maxwell Davies featuring rhymes, puzzles, horticultural advice and recipes as well as an intervention by a Cat and Mouse. Sofi also highlights the importance of songs as a vehicle for social justice through the work of Gabriela Lena Frank in Mexico which encourages young Latino children to take pride in their culture.

Trad/Quartel - How Can I Keep from Singing
Trad - Uti Vår Hage
Verdi -Chorus of the Hebrew Slaves from Nabucco
Trad - A Paghjella di l'Impiccati
Tormis - Curse Upon Iron
Sibelius - Finlandia
Trad - Drunken Sailor

Maurice Ravel: Boléro

Rafael Aguirre (guitar)
Spanish National Orchestra
David Afkham (conductor)

The Spanish National Orchestra makes its Proms debut under Chief Conductor David Afkham, bringing with it a set of heat-soaked musical postcards. Spanish guitar phenomenon Rafael Aguirre joins the ensemble for Rodrigo's much-loved Concierto de Aranjuez – an elegant, idealised vision of Spain's past. The orchestra transforms itself into a giant guitar in two Ravel classics: the pulsing seguidilla serenade Alborada del gracioso and the hypnotic thrum of Boléro. The adventures of a miller, his beautiful young wife and an amorous magistrate become a vivid series of dances in music from Manuel de Falla's ballet
The Three-Cornered Hat.

Ravel's Piano Concerto at the BBC Proms

Elizabeth Alker celebrates summer music-making in the UK and beyond.

In the first of this year's summer editions of Classical Live, we hear highlights from the First Night of the Proms, when pianist Yunchan Lim joined the BBC Symphony Orchestra and conductor Dalia Stasevska for Ravel's G major Piano Concerto. The BBC Proms loom large in our listening across the season, but we'll also be popping into other summer festivals across Europe; today we visit the Schubertiade Schwarzenberg in Austria and the opening concert of the Leipzig Bach Festival in Germany. Also, every day this week there's a Mozart String Quintet from the elegant rococo Leitheim Castle in Bavaria, with violist Violaine Despeyroux joining Quatuor Voce.

MON 16:00 Composer of the Week (m002yy47)

George Frideric Handel (1685-1759)

The Art of Procuring a Patron

Donald Macleod begins a week exploring Handel's relationships with the powerful figures who shaped his career. In Italy, the young composer made his name among aristocratic and ecclesiastical patrons, navigating a world of salons, academies and private performances. Rome offered opportunity despite restrictions on opera, while figures such as Cardinal Ottoboni and the Marchese Ruspoli provided both platforms and protection. Handel's independence, however, remained striking: even while relying on patronage, he avoided being tied too closely to any single employer.

George Frideric Handel (1685-1759)

The Elector and/or the King

Donald Macleod follows Handel's move north to Hanover and his increasingly decisive drift towards London. Appointed to the Elector's court, he secured generous terms - including the freedom to travel - and wasted little time in doing so. London proved irresistible: success with Rinaldo made him a sensation, and the pull of the city soon outweighed his duties back in Germany. Handel's returns to Hanover became brief and reluctant, as he repeatedly slipped back across the Channel in search of opportunity. The situation took an unexpected turn when his employer, the Elector Georg Ludwig, inherited the British throne as George I - leaving Handel, now firmly established in London, dependent once again on the favour of the very patron from whom he had struggled to run away...

John Storgårds (conductor)

'Sensational' 2025 Sibelius Competition-winner Sueye Park makes her Proms debut, joining John Storgårds and the BBC Philharmonic Orchestra as soloist in Sibelius's Violin Concerto. All fire and ice, a love song for the composer's own instrument, it's the Romantic concerto 'par excellence': deeply personal and powerfully expressive. Sibelius's Nordic lakes meet the choppy ocean waters of Betsy Jolas's 'Tales of a Summer Sea', and later the dark forests and tectonic stirrings of Strauss's Nietzsche-inspired tone-poem 'Also sprach Zarathustra', its blazing orchestral sunrise made famous by Stanley Kubrick's '2001: A Space Odyssey'.

2026 Proms season showcase - Emma Rawicz

Rising star saxophonist and composer Emma Rawicz joins forces with celebrated pianist and composer Gwilym Simcock at St George's, Bristol for an evening of rare and beautiful music, reflecting their collaboration's swiftly-blossoming depth and freedom.

They perform their own tracks and also arrangements of well-known tunes from the American Songbook, that also feature on their debut album. This is intuitively joyful, acrobatic music underpinned by their shared musical intelligence – emotionally gripping improvised music in a pared-down, chamber music setting.

Rodrigo's Concierto de Aranjuez from the BBC Proms

Elizabeth Alker celebrates summer music-making in the UK and beyond.

Throughout the season, Classical Live features highlights from the BBC Proms, the world's greatest classical music festival. Today, we hear more from the Spanish National Orchestra's Proms debut, a Spanish-themed programme built around Rodrigo's beguiling Concierto de Aranjuez. We return to this year's Leipzig Bach Festival's opening concert for music by Lassus and JS Bach, and revisit the Schubertiade Schwarzenberg in Austria to hear former Radio 3 New Generation Artist Konstantin Krimmel singing a ballad by Schubert. Also, every day this week, there's a Mozart String Quintet from the elegant rococo Leitheim Castle in Bavaria, with violist Violaine Despeyroux joining Quatuor Voce.

From the BBC Proms 2026:

WED 16:00 Composer of the Week (m002yxp6)

George Frideric Handel (1685-1759)

The Rise and Fall of the Duke of Chandos

Donald Macleod turns to Handel's association with James Brydges, later Duke of Chandos, whose wealth and ambition created a remarkable musical establishment at Cannons. Working with a resident ensemble of singers and instrumentalists, Handel composed on a scale suited to this grand setting, producing the Chandos Anthems alongside works such as Acis and Galatea and Esther. These pieces reflect both the resources available to him and a shift away from London's commercial theatre. Chandos's lavish musical world proved short-lived, but it gave Handel space to experiment and consolidate his style. The result was a body of music that would feed directly into the next, more public phase of his career.

Mahler: Symphony No.6

BBC Symphony Orchestra
Sakari Oramo (conductor)

Heroes fall but fight on in a programme of monumental soundscapes, poised on the edge of life and death. Sakari Oramo and the BBC Symphony Orchestra celebrate the centenary of Hungary's greatest living composer, György Kurtág, with a rare performance of his powerful orchestral elegy Stele, whose kaleidoscopic textures capture the commotion of a battlefield as seen by a wounded man. In Kurtág's own words: 'The fighting rages all around him, but he sees only a very clear, very blue sky.' Written at one of the happiest times of the composer's life, Mahler's premonitory 'Tragic' Symphony No. 6 – haunted by children's voices, dances and marches, by losses and agonies yet to come – broods on human frailty and resilience in music that threatens to burst the banks of the classical symphony.

THU 16:00 Composer of the Week (m002yyfc) George Frideric Handel (1685-1759) Fit for a King, Queen, Princess and Prince Donald Macleod explores Handel's position at the heart of royal life in Britain, where patronage brought both prestige and pressure. With the accession of George II, Handel supplied music on the grandest scale, writing for coronations, royal ceremonies and public celebration. Yet royal favour was rarely straightforward: competing courts, shifting alliances and changing public taste all shaped his fortunes. While the King and Queen supported him, rival factions – including the Prince of Wales – backed alternative musical ventures, turning London's operatic world into a battleground. Even at the height of court success, Handel faced artistic and financial strain, alongside personal challenges. Sibelius's Violin Concerto from the BBC Proms

Al Ryan celebrates summer music-making in the UK and beyond.

Throughout the season Classical Live features highlights from the BBC Proms, the world's greatest classical music festival. Today, we hear violinist Sueye Park as the soloist in Sibelius's Violin Concerto, and from the same concert, the BBC Philharmonic Orchestra performing Richard Strauss's cosmic tone poem Also sprach Zarathustra. We revisit the Schubertiade Schwarzenberg in Austria to hear Swiss pianist Francesco Piemontesi playing Liszt, and return one last time to the elegant rococo castle in Leitheim, Bavaria, for another of Mozart's String Quintets played by Quatuor Voce and violist Violaine Despeyroux.

From the BBC Proms 2026:
Jean Sibelius
Violin Concerto in D minor, Op. 47
Sueye Park (violin)
BBC Philharmonic Orchestra
John Storgårds (conductor)

From the Schubertiade Schwarzenberg 2026:
Franz Liszt
Years of Pilgrimage (1st Year, Switzerland – Parts 6-9)
Francesco Piemontesi (piano)

From the Leitheim Castle Concerts 2026:

FRI 16:00 Composer of the Week (m002yxq1)

George Frideric Handel (1685-1759)

All for a Good Cause

Donald Macleod ends the week in Dublin, where Handel's relationship to patronage shifts decisively. Invited not by a traditional employer but by the Duke of Devonshire, he arrived to give a season of concerts that were as much about public benefit as artistic display. Here, patronage becomes less personal and more civic; performances raise funds, institutions benefit, and Handel's music becomes the means through which generosity is organised and amplified. The premiere of Messiah sits at the centre of this, conceived on a grand scale but first heard in support of local charities.

Messiah: Sinfonia
Irish Baroque Orchestra
Peter Whelan, conductor

L'Allegro, il Penseroso ed il Moderato: "Sweet bird" Christine Brandes, soprano
Orchestre de Chambre de Paris
John Nelson, conductor

Imeneo: excerpts
Europa Galante
Fabio Biondi, conductor

Messiah, Part III: excerpts
Irish Baroque Orchestra
Irish Baroque Choir
Peter Whelan, conductor

Foundling Hospital Anthem: excerpts Winchester Cathedral Choir
The Brandenburg Consort
David Hill, conductor

John Wilson conducts Respighi's 'Roman Trilogy'

Live at the BBC Proms: John Wilson conducts the Sinfonia of London in Verdi, Walton and Respighi's Roman Trilogy.

Presented by Ian Skelly, live from the Royal Albert Hall, London.

Verdi: The Force of Destiny – overture Walton: Cello Concerto

c.8.10pm

Interval: conductor Ben Gernon discusses how Rome - where Respighi lived from 1913 - became his home, professional base and creative muse.

c.8.30pm

Respighi: Roman Festivals
Respighi: Fountains of Rome
Respighi: Pines of Rome

Jonathan Aasgaard (cello)
Sinfonia of London
John Wilson (conductor)

John Wilson and his Sinfonia of London – hailed by critics as 'peerless' and 'simply as good as it gets' – are back for the first of two concerts this season. Ottorino Respighi's love affair with Rome is captured in a trilogy of orchestral tone-poems – heat-soaked, colour-saturated works that invite the listener into the mercurial life of the Eternal City: festivals and dances, misty mornings and scented summer evenings, fanfares and solitary silence. The concert opens with Verdi's much-loved overture to The Force of Destiny and Walton's rhapsodic Cello Concerto, its ardent, yearning spirit perhaps a portrait of the composer's own marriage. Norwegian cellist Jonathan Aasgaard is the soloist.

Yara Asmar and Quinie in session

Verity Sharp shares the fruits of our latest exclusive collaboration session, a meeting of multi-instrumentalist and puppeteer Yara Asmar and Glasgow-based Scots singer and interpreter Quinie.

Yara Asmar makes use of lo-fi recording methods and works with a range of sound sources including the accordion, voice, field recordings, metallophone, deconstructed and disassembled toys, and electronics. Her work is known to be deeply-affecting, raw, intimate, and strongly rooted in place. In 2020, during the pandemic, Yara Asmar turned to recording music at home on cassettes and her mobile phone, using her grandma's Hohner Marchesa accordion, a piano and field recordings of hymns sung in churches around Lebanon. Her work is known to be deeply affecting, raw, intimate, and strongly rooted in place. On her 2023 album, she explores ideas of depersonalisation and disconnection from our immediate surroundings, explaining in an interview that “Us, who remain here, create places that protect us from things that are happening around us”. While her most recent release, Sighs II, shows the vibratory potential of metals, reflecting on the idea that metal is responding, rather than resonating, actively shaping its own afterlife. Quinie, aka Josie Vallyely, is a Glasgow-based Scots singer whose work explores landscape, place and ancestors. Quinie's vocals use a blend of sean nos style melodies, children's rhyme and story poems and are, at their core, inspired by Scottish Traveller singers. Whilst conscious of not being a member of the Traveller community, she has been inspired by Traveller friends who taught her that settled people sharing these songs could contribute to raising awareness. “Scottish Travellers are marginalised and discriminated against in modern Scotland, despite being custodians of so many of our important traditions. So I started to perform them and tell this story.” Her third album, released in May 2025, was made following a pilgrimage across the West of Scotland on her horse, collecting and interpreting songs as she went. Elsewhere in the show, Verity Sharp shares a collaboration between artist and slime mould, the fruits of which bear an articulation of grief fuelled by ecological decline; and a paean to trans lives. Plus, a shimmering, beating, flittering, bubble-like response to a cassette tape score, and a soulful, improvised delivery of folk tales told via mini-choir from Chicago. Produced by Cat Gough A Reduced Listening production for BBC Radio 3 FRI 23:30 'Round Midnight (m002yxqb) Knats in concert Tonight, Soweto shares performance highlights from rising stars Knats, recorded at Cobalt Studios in Newcastle on Saturday 2nd May. Knats are one of the UK's most exciting new bands. They're a quintet led by two lifelong best mates from Newcastle Upon Tyne, Stan Woodward (bass) and King David-Ike Elechi (drums), alongside their younger sidekick and virtuoso trumpeter, Ferg Kilsby. Their “Geordie Jazz” sound combines blistering jazz fusion with drum 'n' bass style percussion, punk intensity and gritty spoken word poetry, and their debut album “A Great Day in Newcastle” is out now. 'Round Midnight is presented by award-winning saxophonist Soweto Kinch. This weekday late-night show celebrates the thriving UK jazz scene and spotlights the best new music alongside incredible acts from past decades.
